Fine amnesty as library prepares for computer hookup

by Arlene Surprenant

To start everyone with "a clean slate" before going on line with the Merrimack Valley Library consortium, Wilmington Memorial Library Director Philip Meriam has announced patrons may return any outstanding books or materials at no cost.

The amnesty period is in effect now until March 23, the date Wilmington officially becomes the 14th town to hook into the computer base in Andover. Wilmington will join such neighboring communities as Lowell, Andover, Billerica, and Chelmsford in providing more than 1.5 million books and more efficient service to town residents.

Library personnel have been working diligently bar coding materials and recording approximately 3,000 books a month in the data base. To date, said Meriam, 50,105 books have been recorded. Residents have also been asked to come to the library for new replacement cards which can be used system-wide. Since the end of January, 1,495 patrons have been registered.

Meriam told the Town Crier "we are encouraging early registration to make the process that much smoother," though he added residents may also sign up after the 23rd.

Patrons will have to familiarize themselves with several important changes in policy and procedure once the library goes on line. These changes will be spelled out in a brochure made available at the library at the end of the month.

According to Meriam and librarian Chris Dehoff, who is co-coordinator of the computer project, the new system will allow a brief five day grace period after the return due date. There will be no formal notification that a book is overdue, shifting much of the responsibility to return material onto the patron.

After the five day period, patrons will be charged five cents a day per book up to one dollar maximum. On the sixth day, the fine will be calculated from the due date making it automatically 30 cents per book. Under current policy, there is an approximate two week grace period and a two dollar service charge for overdue books.

Under the new system patrons will have exactly 21 days to return a book. If a patron has 10 or more overdue items or unpaid fines of one dollar or more, he or she will not be accorded borrowing privileges until these are settled. Fines from overdue or lost books go into the town's general fund rather than toward replacement of books.

The new library cards will be good indefinitely and can be used at any library in the consortium. The current cards were issued for a three year period before renewal.

Dehoff explained that with computerization residents may more easily obtain reserve books. Patrons can obtain books through an agency hold, which reserves a Wilmington book for a town resident, or through a system-wide hold, which provides material from any library in the consortium.

Legion Hall is no more

A backhoe demolished the remains of Legion Hall on Tuesday afternoon. Work started about 5 p.m., and within an hour, the building was down. The 140-year-old building was heavily damaged in a fire early on Feb. 17.

Article would tighten Webber Amendment

by Arlene Surprenant

The Wilmington Planning Board Tuesday night reviewed two amendments to zoning bylaws which they will bring to April's town meeting as separate articles. Both would tighten up present regulations.

The first article covers site plan review and, if passed, would give more leverage to the Building Inspector to control safety hazards and adequate parking on site.

Building Inspector James Russo suggested they add the word "altered" to the article. Thus, anyone seeking a building permit would need a site plan review on any building to be constructed, altered, or externally enlarged.

Russo, who had been asked to review the proposed articles last week, met with some opposition. Chairman Carole Hamilton felt a formal or informal site plan review requirement would be costly for owners and impose "tremendous hardship" on the "mom and pop" type owner planning to alter a building. She also felt the change might bring her board to "our collective knees" by bringing in more work than they could handle.

"I think the whole purpose of this is perhaps to pick up the stragglers who deserve to have a review done on their property," said Russo, explaining that currently owners can structurally alter a building without his department's knowledge because a site plan review isn't required. In the end, planners agreed to the word "remodeled" rather than "altered."

The second article deals with a change in the Webber Amendment (pre-existing lots) to bring the bylaw more in conformity with the State Zoning Act. This amendment allows a dwelling to be built on lots with less than required area, frontage, or width providing they conform to provisions set forth in the Zoning Bylaws of September, 1934. The proposed change only allows property to be grandfathered in if it doesn't adjoin land of the same owner.

Russo argued it was "too late" to change the bylaw since the town has reportedly allowed 700 grandfathered lots to be built on and it would be like "closing the barn door" after the horse has bolted. He felt the smaller lots could be used for affordable housing in some way.

Hamilton said this bylaw had generated a lot of discussion in the past and the reason for the proposed change was to give voters one more chance to see if they wished to continue in this vein. She added she would prefer any bylaw changes come from her board and not individual residents.

Suzi Cushing named to fill father's school committee seat

by Arlene Surprenant

Amid accusations of nepotism, favoritism, and politics, Suzanne Cushing was appointed to fill the school committee seat left vacant by her late father Mitchell Spiris.

Cushing received seven of the nine votes cast by the Wilmington Board of Selectmen and the school committee in a joint meeting last Wednesday. The only other name placed in nomination was that of James Babineau, who is one of three candidates for the two year seat in April's general election. Babineau's name was placed in nomination by Bridget Zukas, but failed to be considered for lack of a second.

Four persons had submitted letters of application for the position: Cushing, Babineau, Gerald O'Reilly and Dr. Michael Thomas.

While selectmen gave Cushing's candidacy unanimous approval when it was learned she would not run in April, school committeemen were divided in their support and, at times, threatened to turn the emotional meeting into a game of political one-up-man-ship.

Tony Accardi was persistent as he questioned the process, saying with many critical decisions to be made in the next six weeks, they should leave the seat vacant and let the voters decide in April. Selectmen chairman Rocco DePasquale told Accardi "the law is clear" that they should fill the seat. Accardi argued that that wasn't "the spirit of the law" with the election so close and he wouldn't vote for any candidate placed in nomination.

When Zukas pushed to have all four candidates speak on their qualifications, DePasquale told her "you as a committee have done your research (and) I feel you have had ample time." Zukas then nominated Babineau, citing his credentials, and asked if anyone had the "courage" to second the motion. No one did.

Cushing was nominated by Shirley Callan. In the final tally, Zukas and Accardi cast the only dissenting votes.

The majority of board members praised the appointment. They felt Cushing would carry out the ideals and philosophy of her father and agreed with Jim Stewart she was "truly the only appropriate person to fill the position."

There were some present, however, who were not happy with the appointment. James Babineau said afterward he felt he should have been granted an interview. His wife, too, was critical of the process.

"What I have heard described here tonight is nepotism and favoritism. We're deeply disappointed with this appointment," she said. Alice Shaffer had some comments of her own. "I feel it's all political ... It's a shame to go on just your father's name," she said.

Cushing publicly thanked selectmen for their support despite "innuendos" thrown their way the past few weeks.

"It's a tribute to my father and I appreciate it," she stated, adding "I will be forever proud to be Mitch Spiris' daughter." Cushing will remain on the committee until April 18 when voters will elect her successor.

Takes oath

The newest member of the Wilmington School Committee is Suzi Cushing, appointed to serve for six weeks until the annual election on April 18. She is taking the seat of her late father, Mitchell Spiris. Town Clerk Patty Ward swore her in on Thursday.

BUSINESS EXPENSES COST MORE

Uncle Sam won't share business expenses as generously under the new tax law, so firms may take a sharper look at expense accounts. Real costs are going up as tax rates go down and the new law limits the expenses that may be deducted.

Two changes loom large: only 80 percent of certain business meals and entertainment are deductible now, down form 100 percent; and unreimbursed employees' business expenses will be deductible only insofar as they exceed 2 percent of adjusted gross income.Expect to see some renegotiation with employers to cover these costs.

And the IRS is getting sticky about what constitutes a business meal; the taxpayer or his representative must be present and must talk business at the meal or just before it, and the cost of the meal should not be extravagant.

Deductions for tickets to entertainment events, luxury water travel, and "educational" travel are also strictly limited.

Septic system problems remain at high school

by Arlene Surprenant

The Permanent Building Committee learned Monday that septic problems continue to hold up a certificate of compliance for the high school septic system.

To date, 12 out of 15 manhole covers have been replaced to take care of odor complaints at the facility. According to representatives of Dana Perkins, the others would be replaced if necessary.

In a field inspection February 20, it was learned something was wrong with the float inside the distribution box which triggers the septic counter. When the situation is corrected, PBC members were told one last inspection would be made.

Acting chairman Diane Allan said that this problem "holds up everything" and is becoming costly. She noted it cost $1,024 for inspection fees and meetings through January 24.

Architect Wilson Rains said the contractor has been asked to correct the problem and he suggested the board give him a time frame to finish up the work.

Other problems continue to plague PBC members.

Robert Soper questioned the status of brighter lights in the front of the building, saying he wouldn't sign anymore requisitions until the lights were installed. Apparently, several outside lights were switched around and the sub-contractor left. For safety and security reasons, the town advised members to install brighter lights. Rains told members the sub-contractor left because Sciaba (Construction Co) may have led him to believe he wouldn't get paid for the work.

Another problem brought up was water leaking under the shower partitions in the girls' locker room. The water, members learned, may be rusting lockers and creating mold. Rains suggested either a stainless steel closure panel or "skirts" added to the walls to prevent the flooding.

"We're going to get some help," said Rains. "We need it fast," was Allan's terse comment.

One optimistic note in the discussion was the news that the school library officially opened this week.

Bridge expert

A single authority should be in charge of bridges in Massachusetts, according to Charles W. Terenzio, vice president of the engineering firm of Barnes & Jarvis, who spoke before the Tewksbury Lions Club on Feb. 25.

Info sought on TV studio

by Arlene Surprenant

Permanent Building Committee members sought more information on the cable TV studio to be located at Wilmington High School from Town Manager Buzz Stapczynski at their meeting Monday evening.

According to Stapczynski, the studio is a "joint venture" of the town and school department. While school officials may provide courses in cable production and tape athletic, drama, or other education-related activities during the day, it is anticipated the town will utilize the studio in the late afternoons and evenings.

Because of space limitations in the building, educators and the town manager are currently exploring several possible locations, such as the music rooms or the auditorium stage area. Stapczynski told PBC members he is looking for an area that would be isolated from the rest of the building as the studio would be used on weekends also.

The funds for the studio will be provided by the Greater Boston Cable Corp. under the terms of the new contract.

Stapczynski said they would not need an elaborate or costly setup and they would try to work within the funds provided. He suggested members of the Cable TV Advisory Task Force come to a future PBC meeting to discuss the studio with new architects Knight, Bagge, and Anderson.

"I don't want them to be pricing out a Cadillac when we only have money for a Chevy," he explained.

Committee views rubbing of plaque

Members of the Permanent Building Committee Monday reviewed a rubbing of the PBC plaque which will hang in Wilmington High School upon completion of the renovation project.

The large plaque proclaims that "this project is dedicated to the students of Wilmington. It is a symbol of the commitment by the townspeople to further the education of our youth."

The plaque includes the names of present PBC members and all chairmen as well as that of State Rep. James Miceli. Town Manager Buzz Stapczynski asked that his name and that of Town Counsel Alan Altman, which were originally included, be removed.

Members were told there has been no official decision on the school committee plaque which had been the subject of some controversy at a prior meeting.

$134,000 estimate for Middlesex Pines completion

by Arlene Surprenant

Plans to complete roadwork in the two sections of the Middlesex Pines subdivision are expected to be ready by the end of this week, according to engineering consultant Michael Roache of Fay, Spofford, and Thorndike. Roache told members of the Wilmington Planning Board last night (Tuesday) that he expects to advertise for bids next week and anticipates it will take approximately three more weeks to get the bids back.

After an on-site visit to the subdivision, Roache said he found "a number of substantial problems" Though he found drainage pipes on Palmer Way were in "tough shape," he said conditions on Douglas Avenue were worse. He told of a hydrant that needed to be re-set, necessary pavement repairs, and the need for granite curbs in the cul-de-sac and in the curve. He also questioned the condition of the materials used in the construction.

According to Roache, the estimated cost of work on Palmer Way is $54,000 and the estimated cost of Douglas Avenue comes out to $80,000, based on construction costs in similar jobs. This poses a problem as there is only $80,000 total monies left to complete the job.

To cut costs, Roache explained they could conceivably delete part of the work, such as granite curbs, sidewalks, and trees, and add them at a later date.

Roache warned planners that bids may come in at twice the estimated cost since smaller jobs generally carry higher price tags. Another foreseeable problem, he said, was not having enough contractors bid on the work because of a surplus of jobs and a reluctance to take on someone else's work. Original contractor Patrick Cone started the job.

Planning board chairman Carole Hamilton assured neighborhood spokesman Doug Souza that residents will have some input on what to delete once the bids come in. She also explained the work may have to be scaled down and re-bid if the figures come in "all out of proportion."

The first cycle approved grants totaling $704.00 to teachers--Miss Weisberg to take her students to see a musical play "Pinocchio" at the North Shore Theater and Mrs. O'Donnell to help take her students to see the Boston Ballet perform.

The next distribution of funds is scheduled for July 1987. Applications are now available at the Town Hall and Memorial Library. Teachers are urged to apply for PASS funds. Wilmington school reps to attend drug conference

by Arlene Surprenant

Wilmington school personnel, high school athletes, representatives of the Chemical People and the Peer Leadership group and others will participate in Thursday's Governor's Alliance Against Drugs state conference to be held at Massasoit College in Brockton.

The day long conference is being sponsored by the Drug Enforcement Administration (DEA) and the US Dept of Justice. The conference theme - "Focus on Athletes and Youth" - will be carried out in specially planned workshops and talks by guest speakers Lonise P. Bias and John Lawn. Mrs. Bias is the mother of athlete Len Bias, who died of cocaine intoxification. Lawn is a national administrator for the DEA.

According to Chemical People Chairman Anne Linehan, the second annual conference will help attendees realize "there are no quick fixes" to the problem of chemical abuse but a cooperative effort and education is a step in the right direction.

"The problem did not come overnight nor will it go away overnight," Mrs. Linehan said Monday, adding that she was "very pleased Wilmington will be so well represented at this conference."

Gas line changeover may affect town

A proposal to install a larger gas main on the Tennessee Gas Pipeline in Burlington may have some impact in Wilmington.

The original proposal is for the replacement of about two miles of 12-inch gas main with 24-inch main. The work would take place entirely in Burlington.

Alternative proposals have also been prepared, one of which would extend the replacement into Wilmington. The work would take place along the existing gas line, coming in from Burlington as far as Main Street, including Marion Street Extension, Chestnut Street and Butters Row.

A hearing was held in the Wilmington Town Hall on Monday night by the Mass. Energy Facilities Siting Council. The hearing was attended by only three people from Wilmington, but about a half dozen from Burlington.

The Burlington residents were upset about the proposed work in their town, particularly on Paul Street. They described it as a fairly congested area, and said the work would have an impact on their property.

ATennessee Gas Pipeline Co. representative said that the work as proposed would cost about $3.8 million. Any of the alternatives proposed would cost $5.8 million. In order to complete the work this year, the company needs to have approval by July.

One proposed alternative was to run the line along Route 128 near the Burlington Mall. This could not be done, said a company spokesman, because it would mean installing the gas line under an existing parking garage.

The gas line is known as the Beverly-Salem lateral. Tennessee Gas Line Co. transports the gas, which is sold to companies. The gas in this particular line supplies Boston Gas and Essex Gas companies.

In Wilmington, the line begins at the Burlington line, and crosses Marion Street Extension, Chestnut Street, Butters Row, Main Street, Lowell Street, Woburn Street, West Street and Route 93.

The Mass. Energy Facilities Siting Council will make a recommendation to the Federal Energy Regulatory Commission, which will make the decision.

NORTHEAST WART CLINIC
Laser Surgery for Warts

Laser Surgery is one of the newest and most significant applications of laser technology in the last two decades. Laser Surgery takes advantage of the intense hear generating properties to cut and remove tissue without the undesirable side effects that sometimes result from using a scalpel. The Laser produces a man-made light that has only one color and does not produce nay undesirable radiation. The Laser we use is a Carbon-Dioxide Laser and it is the most versatile of the medical Lasers.

In our office we now use this laser technology in the removal of warts and other lesions of the hands, feet, genitals and other body areas. Warts to be removed are identified, anesthetized with local anesthesia and "lased" with short bursts of laser light. Not only does the laser remove the warty tissue, but it also stops the bleeding and prevents the swelling that usually results in post-operative discomfort. The procedure is very effective; with minimal discomfort and limitations.

Frankly speaking

by Kevin John Sowyrda

There is something unusual about claiming fiscal stress on one hand and increasing your personnel costs on the other. That's the situation voters in Wilmington may face at Annual Town Meeting, in light of recent revisions submitted by the town manager for the FY-1988 Budget.

The original theme of the FY '88 budget was fiscal constraints due to an ever changing federal and state aid situation in Wilmington, according to the manager. However, no sooner was this message sent by the chief executive of the local government that we are confronted with a most significant number of personnel increases, some of which are at the administrative level.

Thus, the town manager who has significant concerns regarding aid to Wilmington, has proposed new personnel positions which total $121,825. If you add the controversial proposal of a new assistant town manager to this figure, the grand total of personnel increases in town government goes over $150,000.

Accordingly, the voters are going to have to make some genuine value judgements when voting on the FY '88 budget. Is it better to maintain quality basic services, or should we risk the danger of heading toward a top heavy administration in Wilmington? This decision has to be made in light of an original budget presentation by the Manager which noted growing fiscal constraints. If this situation has changed, than the budget theme has to be publicly corrected.

Back in January, Town Manager Stapczynski presented his FY '88 Budget which was introduced with the words, 'the theme of fiscal stress.' Accordingly, the decrease in aid to Wilmington was cited as follows: "The revenues available for 1988 are limited. In fact, this years budget reflects a decrease of $150,000 in revenue sharing funds and a diminished local aid due to the states general slowdown in their revenue growth."

There are many who would question that synopsis, and cite actual increases in funding to the town. After the statement was made by the town manager, Rep. Jim Miceli cited figures indicating increases in state funding.

But nevertheless, a budget cannot center around a theme of decreased funding on one hand, and yet call for personnel increases on the other. From a public budgeting standpoint, the first thing to put a cap on under 'fiscal stress' would be the hiring of new personnel, most especially administrators.

Accordingly, as the FY '88 budget comes under increasing scrutiny, it will be appropriate, as under any fiscal environment, to demand very careful and detailed justification for an expanded town payroll.

The March 8, 1962 edition of the Town Crier of Wilmington noted that:

Robert Sumberg, vice president and comptroller of the Wilmington Avco plant failed in his bid for election to the Municipal Light Department Board of Reading.

A square dance sponsored by the Junior Chamber of Commerce would be held at the Grange Hall on Wildwood Street on March 10.

Fluoridation was defeated 1622-701 with 71 blanks; John Brooks was re-elected selectman with 1612 of 2394 votes; Wavie Drew garndered 1238; Rene LaRivee, on his third try was elected to the board with 1133 votes.

For the school committee Glen Connolly received 1073 votes, and Ed Page 950.

Judy Gratcyk, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Elmer Gratcyk of Grove as a guest of her employer, Ohio State Senator Stephen Young, was sitting in the company of Mrs. Alan Shepard and Mrs. Gus Grissom in the Senate Caucus Room in Washington DC, only 20 feet from the microphone laden table at which Lt. Col. John H. Glenn Jr. and his fellow astronauts Grissom and Shepard were addressing the U.S. Senate.

Mr. and Mrs. Donald Letellier of Dobson Street announced the engagement of their daughter Nora to Robert Branscombe, son of Elmer Branscombe of Main Street.

The Rev. Robert Gosselin, former rector of St. Dorothy's, on leave of absence from his missionary in Peru, was scheduled to speak after the 7:30 Mass on Monday at St. Dorothy's.

Arthur Harper of Crest Avenue was a patient at Quigley Hospital in Chelsea having undergone eye surgery.

Mrs. Eleanor Cleary was serving as Welcome Wagon hostess.

Good Guy Committee seeks candidate

The Good Guy Committee is looking for a deserving person in Wilmington to honor as this year's Good Guy recipient. This event - the 19th annual - is designed to honor that person (non-political) who goes beyond the normal call of duty to make our community a better place in which to live.

If you know of anyone whom you feel would be deserving of this award, please help the committee by submitting your nomination, with the reasons why this individual should be so rewarded to:

Good Guy Committee
P.O. Box 387
Wilmington, Ma 01887

Deadline for nominations is Friday, April 3. The award will be presented at a banquet May 9 in the Sons of Italy Hall, presided over by chairman Judy DiPalma, 1986 Good Guy recipient.

letters to the editor

Dear Larz:

I would appreciate it if you would print the following speech which is a repeat of what I said following my appointment to the School Committee on Wednesday, February 25, 1987.

"I would like to publicly thank the Board of Selectmen for their vote tonight. In the last few weeks a lot of innuendoes have been thrown your way by certain members of another board hinting that you were giving political advantage to a certain candidate. You chose to stand united behind me in whatever decision I made. I am very grateful to you, your confidence in me is a tribute to my Dad and a great honor to me.

"I would be remiss if I did not mention someone who's friendship was evolved from a tragedy. Shirley, thank you for being the one member of the School Committee who has come to me and told me what a loss Mitch's death was to the School Committee, our schools and our children. You have seen me through some very bad times in the past month. Your friendship has been a great comfort to me.

"A special thank you to all my friends who are here tonight in support of me.

"To Jim, you have been my strength, your love has held me together. Your support in whatever decision I made concerning the School Committee was always there.

"One last feeling - there is a man somewhere up above smiling down on me saying 'I told you you could do it!' I will forever be proud to be known as Mitch Spiris' daughter. My experience comes from being raised by and watching one of the finest educators around."

Thank you,
Suzanne Spiris Cushing

Dear Larz:

It's interesting that the origination of the word "Podunk" was derived from a locality in Mass. It's most disconcerting to see another article each week that indicates we are taking giant leaps to the depths of "Podunkism"

Most disturbing of all is the ever increasing evidence that lack of action, unintentional or otherwise, on the part of elected, appointed and salaried town officials in seemingly unrelated situations is causing or contributing to many of the problems.

A recent ad book by a local organizatioan contains a half page "A Brief History of Wilmington" by A.C. Passmore. It is perceptive in that the author says "finally present day highways have provided multiple routes through the town thus provoking one speculative residential subdivision or commercial project after another." Those words "provoking" and "speculative" are not complimentary terms and reflect on how well we are being managed.

Pull some pieces together and you'll see what's happening. It isn't nice, and it isn't in the best interest of the majority of residents. More and more the town is being "managed" by individuals or groups for their own set projects and even worse their own greed.

1. Upcoming warrant articles:

A. Rezone 23 acres from residential to General Industry.

B. Rezone 3.85 acres from R20 to High Density Business.

Bad News

2. Special permit requested allowing extensive additional use of a brand new ice rink which was sold to the town on the basis of being a vitally needed skating facility. If it was so vital - where are all these additional hours for "exposition" purposes going to come from?

Bad News

The good news is that Appeals Board chairman Bruce MacDonald put on some breaks to this.

Bad News - where were the police and fire officials on the night of the hearing? Public safety and public inconvenience are of paramount importance in this decision.

3. When the town meeting votes to take an action: Town officials then decide whether they want to - if they don't, they evidentally don't.

Example - Articles 24, 25, 26 of 1982 Town Meeting, Saturday, April 24, 1982, voted to purchase wetlands for wellfield. This was not done and now we face a "speculative residential subdivision" in a bog!

Bad News - Why wasn't the action taken and even worse why was it kept a secret? The odor is strong on this one!

Example - 1986 Town Meeting voted funds for a Conservation Chairman.

Bad News - that was last April and still nothing from the Town Manager despite the willingness of the current Conservaiton Commission chair to accept the position.

Wanna bet the T.M. excludes this item from his upcoming budget? Unintentionally of course!

The big questions -

1. If we vote for something at town meeting why isn't it carried out?

2. Why have a town meeting if the votes are going to be ignored?

3. Why does a stink have to be made by private citizens to wake up town officials?

4. What else is buried in the woodpile?

Sincerely,
William MacKinnon

Dear Larz:

I was in attendance at the meeting for the appointment to fill the seat of Mitch Spiris. I was appalled at the process and the criterion used to select Mr. Spiris' replacement.

Candidates for the appointment were denied their basic freedom of speech to present themselves as candidates. What they had to contribute was not even taken into consideration by Mr. DePasquale, the chairman of the meeting. The meeting was a sham, and obvious to anyone who was in attendance that the five selectmen had chosen their candidate well before the public meeting.

Is this how the Wilmington Town Government operates? It appears that one must either be related to someone in town government or know someone very well to be considered a candidate for an appointment. It distresses me, as a taxpayer, that these people represent us.

Respectfully yours,
Mary Anne Babineau

P.S. Do you dare to print the other side?

Dear Larz:

I wish to thank your paper and especially Mrs. Surprenant for the very complimentary article written about my musical accomplishments last week.

There is one person who was inadvertently omitted during my interview.

Miss Lorraine Kalil has been an inspiration not only to me but to all the music students in the town for many years.

My apologies to Miss Kalil and most of all my sincere thanks to a wonderful and devoted teacher.

Sincerely,
Jeff Murphy

Dear Larz:

The Wilmington Lions Club would like to offer its sincere thanks to Mrs. Edith Cunningham and her staff at the Senior Citizen Drop-in Center and our family members and friends, in particular our two All-Star soft ball players, Bob Wright and Tiny Cunningham.

We also extend our special thanks to the physicians at the Burlington Eye Associates, without whom this screening would have been impossible.

Reporting on upcoming elections

Every morning I walk through the lilac bushes and over the stone wall on my south line. Once on the other side I follow the well-beaten path which leads to Gramp Wiley's trailer.

This morning I was lucky enough to have a bit of controversial gossip on the tip of my tongue. I knew as soon as Gramp found out which side I was on, he'd disagree with me.

"The powers that be have stopped teachers from smoking up at the school," I said as I eased into my favorite stuffed chair. "Not because they want to clean up the air, not because they want adults to serve as good role models, but to force all of the teachers with nicotine shakes into early retirement."

"You own all the air in the room if you're a smoker," Gramp said. "Non-smokers don't even own the air an inch away."

"Smokers find the truth unpleasant," I said.

"The truth can hurt anyone."

"You don't want to argue this morning?" I said with surprise.

"I don't need to. It's the season for political commercials - you can't turn on a TV or open a newspaper without seeing enough jawing and bickering to gag a jackal."

"It does get pretty bad."

"Of course backbiting is still not as bad as it was in my day," Gramp said brightly. "Newspaper people aren't half as tough on candidates that they disagree with as they used to be."

I sat up straight and flushed a bit as I said, "Newspaper people only report the truth. I don't know a single reporter or political reasons. Members of such an honoroable profession wouldn't abuse their power." columnist who slants stories for personal or political reasons. Members of such an honorable profession wouldn't abuse their power."

"The truth. That's all that was printed in the old Tenants Harbor Tattler. Let's look at these from the 1930s."

My old neighbor reached for some yellowed papers beneath his rocker.

"Let's see - I've circled the more interesting truths to make them easier to find. Here's one. 'Albert Feek, the Democratic party's stalwart candidate for the legislature, was not found naked in an alcoholic coma in his garage last Thursday at 9 a.m.'

"Here's more. 'Although he looks sprightly for his age, our able Mr. Feek was not seen with the comely wife of his next door neighbor at an undisclosed watering hole late last night.'"

"That's an interesting way to report the news, Gramps."

"And every word of it is true," my neighbor exclaimed. "The reporter was telling it like it really didn't happen. 'Voters will be glad to learn that Albert Feek did not embezzle a large amount of money from his customers' trust account at the insurance company he recently inherited from his father.'

"And then there were the retractions. 'Albert Feek, Democratic candidate for the legislature, did not leave the road while being pursued at high speeds by police. Large quantities of white lightning were not found in the wreck and he did not leave the scene to spend the night in a gravel pit with his 15-year-old babysitter.'

"The following week readers were told that 'An intoxicated Albert Feek, his putrid lies not suggestive of a dead mackrel shining in the moonlight, did not drive a stolen Lincoln into the swimming pool of the Duck Trap Croquet Club last Tuesday night at 11:15.'"

I said, "Yup, the reporters were simply telling it like it wasn't. No candidate for political office should be afraid of the truth."

While it is true that the town meeting voted money to buy the cranberry bogs, there is also good reason why the purchase never took place.

In negotiations with the Lowell Cranberry Company, the Water Department sought to buy only the wetland areas, not the entire parcel owned by the cranberry company. They were not able to arrive at a negotiated settlement.

The water commissioners were reluctant to use eminent domain proceedings, because of potential liability. A case in Barnstable gives good reason for the commissioners reluctance. A person whose land was taken for water sued, and won a substantial settlement, based on the value of the water.

When the cranberry bog property was recently sold to the BCT Trust, the seller's attorney told the buyer's attorney that he had a message for the Town of Wilmington. He then delivered the message in the form of an uncomplimentary hand gesture.

The town is currently in negotiations with the BCT Trust to arrange the purchase of the wetland areas. Jay Tighe of BCT has said he has no interest in attempting to build in the cranberry bog.

Congratulations to the following winners in the Boston Globe Scholastic Art Awards regional competition. Andre Paradis from the North Intermediate and Dana Boone from Wilmington High School copped Gold Keys. Ronald Brabant, Andrea Kane, and Catherine Murphy were awarded Honorable Mention.

The Regional competition was the first step in a statewide and national art competition. The young artists were recently honored at an awards ceremony at Montserrat School of Visual Art in Beverly. Winners of Gold Keys are participating in a statewide exhibit at Fanueil Hall until March 8 where they will compete for Blue Ribbon Awards.

Wildwood School

The Wildwood PAC executive committee was pleased with the turnout of over 50 parents at the last meeting. Time constraints led to less discussion on some topics than was desired. However, the committee, representing all Wildwood parents and acting for the majority, is always open to suggestions from parents before decisions are made.

Comments may be directed to any member of the executive committee who are: Maureen McDonald, Peggy Kane, Cynthia Jones, Linda Bouchie, Irene Hoffman, Barbara Bishop, Patty Burke, Janice Mangino, Ellen Heigham, Kathy Fitzgerald, Phyllis LaCava and Chris Dehoff.

The annual book fair will take place March 9-11. Children will be making their selections, taking home order forms for parent approval, and paying for their orders during that period of time. Profits from the book fair go toward defraying costs of elducational events sponsored by the PAC. Through the book sale, the school library also receives books to add to its collection.

Children's Museum Pass

Through the combined efforts of the three elementary school PACs, the pass for the Boston Children's Museum has been renewed for another year. The pass is good March 1, 1987 through February, 1988. It will allow a family of four to enter the museum free of charge.

Residents may sign up for the pass at Wilmington Memorial Library.

Author's Note: This is your column. If you have any school related news you would like to share with the public, please send it in to the Town Crier office by Monday afternoon or call Arlene Surprenant at 658-5696 by Monday evenings.*

Tewksbury school news

The students in room 15, grade four, Mrs. Friedman's class, have been learning about culture in social studies. Everyone was assigned several papers as guides to help them explore their nationality, religion, language, tools and shelter. Utilizing reference materials, interviewing relatives, delving through attics and cellars, the class was to prepare a written report plus give a oral presentation as part of the culminating activities.

On January 30, 1987 after partaking in a luncheon consisting of various ethnic foods expertly prepared by their relatives, they eagerly learned an Italian dance, French song, heard an Irish flute, Polish music, Italian words, saw a replica of an Irish home, Greek doll, German clothing, money and other hand made articles from their varied backgrounds.

Art Department

The Art Department at the Louise Day Trahan School is busy getting ready for some of the events taking place in the coming months. In March there will be a contest sponsored by the Shawsheen Watershed Environmental Action Team (SWEAT). Art work depicting some of the children's favorite outdoor activities and outdoor sports has been selected to be part of this contest.

In April all the schools will take part in the 5th annual art exhibit held at the high school. Children at the Trahan have been doing some outstanding work which will be on display at this event.

In June the Trahan School will have its own art exhibit. All the children will be doing work to be displayed at this program. Fourth graders who have been studying about art history will be on hand to guide parents and friends through the exhibit.

Honor roll

The following fourth grade students at the Trahan School have earned honor roll grades for the second marking period.

Women's Club will discuss handicap support dogs

Home Life will be featured at Club Institute of the Massachusetts State Federation of Women's Clubs (MSFWC) on Thursday morning, March 5, at 10:30 at the American Legion Hall in Newton.

Attending from the Wilmington Women's Club will be: August Bishop, Phyllis Flaherty, Phyllis Garrett, Helen Handrahan, Jean Hartka, Shirley Keller, Judi Simmons, Jean Sottile, Liz White and Barbara Dayton.

"Support Dogs for the Handicapped," by Ruth Zayko, MSFWC Home Life chairman; "Arthritis," by Jean Jackson, M.D. of Brigham and Women's Hospital and the Arthritis Foundation, and "The New Tax Reform Bill," by John H. Wood, chief executive officer of MassBank for Savings, will be the program.

Support Dogs for the Handicapped, a relatively new concept, involves training and placing animals to help physically handicapped people, such as those disabled by multiple sclerosis, rheumatoid arthritis, muscular dystrophy, cerebral palsy, or quadriplegia.

Support dogs can open doors, answer phones, activate alarms, turn lights on or off, pick up dropped items, carry or get needed items, and go on banking or shopping errands. They can help owners over from a wheelchair to a couch, get up from a fall, and climb steps without crutches.

The dogs are trained to meet the needs of a particular person before being placed with that individual. The training for such individualized assistance is about $4,000 per animal.

Arthritis, a chronic and crippling disease affecting people of all ages, has no known cure, but early detection and treatment can control pain and reduce inflammation of the affected joint. Of the more than 100 related rheumatic diseases, the most common types are osteoarthritis, rheumatoid arthritis, gout, lupus erythematosus, sclerodactylia, ankylosis spondylitis, and juvenile arthritis.

The Massachusetts State Federation of Women's Clubs, along with the General Federation of Women's Clubs of which it is a part, is working with the Arthritis Foundation to increase awareness about arthritis and the many things that can be done to help people.

Celtics and Dukakis may visit Wilmington

by Anne D. Linehan

Wilmington High students hope to win the "Celtics Challenge" sponsored by the Governor's Alliance Against Drugs. If successful, there is a possibility the Boston Celtics and Governor Michael Dukakis will visit Wilmington.

Called "The Celtics Challenge - Stand Tall Against Drugs," the competition is designed to encourage schools to implement alliance guidelines and to encourage active participation in the anti-drug abuse effort by students.

"The Celtics have long been showing the world what winning is all about. Now they will help our young people understand that to be a winner means not using drugs or alcohol," said Governor Dukakis.

High school students are confident they will win the challenge. Mike LaCava, peer counseling member, said "we have pride in ourselves and in our school and we will win because the majority of the students already support the concept of saying 'no' to drugs and alcohol."

The students will be entering the Challenge with 215 points out of a possible 500. The efforts of the public awareness campaign launched by the Chemical People in 1983 and the efforts of the Wilmington School/Community Advisory Council have accomplished a great deal. Today, Wilmington is considered a leading "Spotlight" community in assuring a safe drug free environment for all students.

Wilmington Public Schools have already met many of the requirements to assist students with their "Challenge." The town has joined the Governor's Alliance as a charter member, the school system has implemented a drug and alcohol prevention curriculum in grades K through 12, they have established a strong drug policy, and formed a school/community advisory council and peer education program.

Now students will be working on the final requirements in cooperation with school administrators. They need the following to win: a signed memorandum between the superintendent of schools and the chief of police to spell out a procedure in the event a student is caught using or selling drugs; a pledge signed by all athletes saying no to drugs and alcohol; and a "say no" pledge signed by a majority of students to demonstrate their commitment to avoid drugs and alcohol.

Junior High prepares for future

Preparations for next year are already underway at the Junior High School.

Eighth grade students interested in a career in vocational education have applied for admission to Shawsheen Tech.

High school guidance counselors will be attending classes at the Junior High School to acquaint students with the varied offerings and prerequisites for college admission as most eighth graders will want to do.

Parents or students who have any questions related to next year's courses are invited to confer with a guidance counselor at the school.

Staff of the Junior High School is currently analyzing both last year's State Assessment results in terms of the objectives measured and the results of the recently administered Iowa Test of Basic Skills. These results will be available to parents at the Open House scheduled for Thursday evening, March 19, 1987 from 7 to 9 p.m. Future plans, next year's courses and examination of these test results give much food for thought and much to discuss with teachers and counselors at the Open House.

Later in the month of March, specifically on March 26, there will be an orientation presentation for parents of fourth grade students who are interested in the Individualized Guided Education (IGE) program for grades five and six, which is housed at the Junior High School. This March 26 introduction to IGE begins at 7 p.m. in the school library.

An orientation program for parents of sixth grade students will be conducted in May. This is an opportunity for parents of these students to become more familiar with the programs and expectations for grades seven and eight at the Junior High School. Mark the calendar now for May 14 for orientation for sixth grade students and parents.

The Wilmington Historical Commission has announced that Carolyn Sullivan Harris is its newest member. Carolyn is a long-time resident of Wilmington; graduating from Wilmington High School in 1964. She presently is a history teacher in the North Reading school system. She, her husband Greg, and son Jason, live at 17 Marion Street.

Troop 136 carries on despite fire

With an attitude of "pick up the pieces and go on," Boy Scout troop 136, of Wilmington continues to work.

On February 24, the troop held a parents night for the parents of the boys in the troop. The turnout was good and many awards were presented.

Eric O'Melia, Gary Danehy and Bob Palazzi all received hiking skill awards while Jody Murray received first aid skill award. Bob Palazzi also received the physical fitness skill award.

One merit badge was earned. That went to Kevin Yetman for camping.

There were three advancements in the troop. Jody Murray reached Tenderfoot along with Gary Danehy. Eric O'Melia received his Second Class Scout award.

The troop has much Scout spirit and Scoutmaster Tom MacFeeley said it best, when he said "We may have lost some of our gear, but at least we're still together."

The troop is grateful that the American Legion plans to rebuild, as it was the troop's home. The members of Troop 136 are also grateful and thank the priests at St. Thomas for the use of Villanova Hall for a temporary home.

To Dad,
A Birthday Message:

There are so many words we didn't say, now we will say solemnly form our hearts. Thanks for a fulfilling and rewarding life and especially for the memories. We'll treasure them forever

You were a builder of many things and a man of many talents, but foremost our dad. Some would have called you an enigma; I think you were an entity, "The Rock."

Dad, you were known by many names, Uncle Milty, Grandpa, friend neighbor and Dad. You were a lot of things to those people. Yes, Dad, you left your mark!

We will always cherish the beauty you created with your hands with your flowers, your love for nature, the trees, and the bird houses. You created a lot of smiles.

We will remember your teachings of "Do it now," "Pen and paper" and "Jackknife." We will remember you devotion to the work ethics, You certainly didn't walk in anyone's shadow but cast a big one. You set an example for others to follow. We will always remember your thunderous voice, your soft hair, and your curled smile. The pain in gone now and in death your life has changed but not ended for your spirit lives within us.

You may have thought you died penniless and a beggar, contrary, you were the richest man alive and you have left a legacy we will never forget. For you have given love, enriched many lives and have built character within our hearts. You grandchildren will remember your kindness when you gave them candy; we remember your teachings with your traditional bank books of $5.21, and how could we ever forget the beach days and the trips to "feed the ducks."

You have truly left your footprints indelibly in the sands of time. Your things are gone now but not forgotten. We remember the man of many qualitites and talents. You surely have enriched our lives with your touch.

Thanks for the love, sacrifice, and direction. We are proud to call you our Dad. When we see the word Dad, we will surely underline it. When we see a bird in flight, we will remember your gentleness.

from his children to a wonderful man we called "Dad." with great appreciation and love from us all on what would have been your 90th birthday.

In Business

Mail-order business locates on Jewel Drive

There is a new company in Wilmington, and it turns out that some of its people are old hands, locally. John Creeth of Biggar Avenue has lived in Wilmington for 17 years, and Mark McSweeney of Jere Road is a one year resident.

Both are employed by Markline, a company that is essentially a mail-order sales organization. The company moved into the Howland Building at the end of Jewel Drive. Other persons in the company live in North Reading.

Markline is a mail-order business, selling through catalogues. There is no comparison to the Sears Roebuck catalogue. The Markline catalogue is about 40 pages in full color. The catalogue features electronic items including calculators, phones, radios and even robots. It also includes some furniture and other household items.

Once an item is discontinued, the company has a problem--what to do with the small stock remaining in inventory. So every now and then they have a warehouse sale. On Saturday they had such a sale, and advertised it in the Town Crier. The sale offered everything from a fake beeper to get you out of a meeting to a roll-top desk. There were computerized chess sets, voice-recognition telephones, calculators, watches and lots more.

Lefavour attends groundwater contamination conference

The groundwater contamination conference recently held in Chicopee, Massachusetts and promoted by the University of Massachusetts, was attended by Jean Lefavour, representing a Stillwater Company, Wilmington, Mass. The day-long program which addressed the long range effects of pesticides and groundwater contamination featured a host of speakers.

Jean Lefavour

Some of the areas represented were as follows: the Massachusetts Pesticide Bureau, the Firefighting Academy, the University of Massachusetts Co-operative Extension and the Experimental Station, the Farm Family Insurance Company as well as several other state and county departments who are actively looking for problems and their solutions. Reportedly, this complexly growing dilemma is found country wide; and initially must be identified in order to be solved, by homeowners with lawns as well as farmers and industry, said Lefavour.

Industry group formulates emergency plans

Wilmington firms which manufacture or use chemicals are joined together in a group designed to improve emergency response planning. The group was organized in December 1985 as a part of the Wilmington Chamber of Commerce. About 45 members of the chamber and guests heard a discussion about that group on March 3 at a luncheon in the Knights of Columbus.

Avco, Polyvinyl Chemicals, Polymer Technical, Raffi & Swanson, Analogue Devices, Sweetheart Plastics and Olin Chemicals were in the group when it was formed, according to Dr. Robert Krueger, general manager of Polyvinyl Chemicals, speaker.

The group is designed to be small, and to meet once a month. It exchanges emergency response plans, lists facilities for emergency use, and meets with the town manager, the police, the fire department, board of health, state police and railroad officials for exchange of information.

The Wilmington Fire Department has lists of basic emergency information, in its trucks. Fire Department crews, when responding to a call can be refreshed on basic emergency information at any plant. The idea is that the firemen will know what they will have to look for when they get there.

The individual companies have developed video tape tours of each facility, so that members of the fire department can know what they are seeing, in the building. It is a vivid refresher to each plant, and by means of it the firemen are able to address the key elements in the plant.

The group has developed a communications center and media focal point which tells where the offices are and how to get there. This is for the use of the town manager, police and fire departments, and it is very important that the information be up to date.

In recent months the group has expanded, by including four more firms.

The closing of the Eames Street Bridge, and the Butters Row Bridge, in recent months shows how areas of the town can become isolated, and how contingencies have to be a part of emergency planning. What do we do, and how do we do it are in the questions.

"Our group feels a responsibility to any emergency in the community, with the question of How can we be of value? We have had group meetings three times in the office of the town manager, twice in the fire chief's office, and twice in the office of the chief of police--all related to emergency planning.

"We do have emergency plans for various situations, and we are making progress."

Dr. Walter Krueger

116th Annual New England Spring Flower Show

"A Nineteeth-Century Garden Center" will be exhibited by Old Sturbridge Village, at the Massachusetts Horticultural Society's 116th New England Spring Flower Show in Boston, March 14- 22.

In keeping with the Flower Show's theme, "Gardens Around the World," Old Sturbridge Village's exhibit will show a garden shop that might have existed in the early nineteeth-century, where imported plants from North America would have been offered to gardeners in other parts of the world.

The exhibit will show the interior of the garden shop where merchandise such as garden pots, tools, seeds, and potted plants whold have been sold and the adjacent nursery where trees, shrubs, and herbaceous plants would have been grown until they were sold.

The articles on display in the garden shop exhibit were all found in advertisements in issues of the New England Farmer dating from the 1830's, and other early nineteeth-century reference books. A costumed interpreter from Old Sturbridge Village will be available every day of the Flower Show to answer questions about the exhibit and discuss gardening.

The New England Sping Flower Show takes place at the Bayside Exposition Center in Boston. Hours of the Flower Show are 10 a.m. to 10 p.m. Monday through Saturday and 10 a.m. to 8 p.m. on Sunday.

Foreign language fair March 11

Escape winter's doldrums and sample some foreign delights via Wilmington High School's annual Foreign Language Fair next Wednesday, March 11.

From 5:30 to 8 p.m., residents are invited to join foreign language students in the new WHS cafeteria for dinner, socializing, and cultural enjoyment. Paella, lasagna, quiche, burritos, chili, fried ice cream, chocolate mousse, croissants and other French pastries are but a few of the tempting treats being offered at the smorgasbord of international foods.

Students will show off projects made especially for the occasion. These include an Eiffel Tower and Learning Tower of Pisa made out of sugar cubes, Canadian ski mobiles, slide shows on art, a creperie, a taco stand, a pizza hut, an Italian restaurant, a French bakery, and a travel agency. In keeping with the foreign flavor, many students will come dressed in such costumes as flamingo dancers and French maids.

The fair is being sponsored by the Foreign Language Department in honor of National Foreign Language Week. The 600 students in the department will participate either through cooking special foods, completing cultural projects, or helping run the fair.

According to language department chairman Louise Bocchino, this is an opportunity for students "to enhance their learning of foreign languages and foreign cultures in a fun and sharing way."

Everyone is welcome to participate in the fair and appreciate the creative talents of WHS students. Snow date is the following night, March 12.

• Library

"We will try to meet the needs of Wilmington residents first," she explained last week, adding that a book delivery service can provide Wilmington residents with out of town books within two days.

The library currently houses a collection of 80,000 books. Prior to Prop 2 1/2, it had a book budget of $57,500, said Meriam. Now the budget is set at $45,675 with the possibility of increasing it at this year's town meeting to $48,000.

Most residents don't know that to help supplement popular books, the library uses the McNaughton Co. rental plan. Under the plan, the library rents extra copies of books in demand on a temporary basis. This usually comes out to 55 books a month. The library staff is also appreciative of paperback books donated by local patrons.

Input sought on open space plan

Conservation Administrator Libby Sabounjian informed the Wilmington Planning Board Tuesday she will continue to seek input from citizens and town boards on a current Open Space Plan. The plan is necessary to allow Wilmington to apply for state grants.

The Open Space Plan, said Sabounjian, is a five year action plan to address the need for recreation land, conservation land, and open space in Wilmington. Funds will come from the Conservation Commission budget.

Following an informal review by the state, Sabounjian found the plan is "basically good but missing a lot of particulars." She was told it needs to be more specific and requires additional citizen input. Sabounjian said she has already talked to such residents as Frank Columbo, Larry Curtis (on the recreational needs of the handicapped), and Ron Swasey (for recommendations on behalf of the Recreation Dept.).

Assisted Lions

We were very happy to be a help to the Lions Club by pre-registering people for the Lions eye clinic during the daytime hours. We were informed it was a very successful day.

Thanks

We thank Reggie Bishop, Lillian Brown, Frances Calandrello, Joe Filipowicz, Mary Geoffrion, Kay and Walter Lindmark, Dario Lifrieri, Ray Needham, Ann MacInnis and Peg McNeill for their help in bagging and distributing cheese, butter, milk and rice to 270 seniors last week.

State aided elderly housing

Effective March 9, 1987 all local Housing Authorities will routinely process applications for state aided elderly housing from persons who are 62 and older. The Housing Authority will place these applications chronologically in the ledger. Applicants 62 will be deemed eligible the same as those 65 and older and will be placed on the waiting list along with those 65.

He/she when their name arrives on the list will be offered the next suitable unit. Our elderly housing at Deming Way has previously accepted only persons 65 and over. If you are 62 and feel you are eligible for elderly housing and would like to apply, call Lillian Buckley at the Housing Authority Deming Way office 658-8531 for an application.

Many seniors do not know that if they apply for an apartment at Deming Way and there are no apartments available at that time, they may also apply in any other town or city in the state, while they are waiting for an opening at Deming Way.

Voter Hall of Fame

The office of the Secretary of State will again this year recognize the long time voter in Massachusetts by inducting them into the "Voter Hall of Fame." The Secretary of State has inducted over 1500 individuals in the the Voter Hall of Fame since 1984. This honor has been given them by displaying their loyalty to the democratic electoral process by voting in every election in which they were eligible for 50 years or more. To receive this honor an application must be certified by the town clerk and submitted to the office of the secretary between March 1 and August 1, 1987. The voter must make a declaration that he/she has been eligible to vote during the last 50 years and will urge at least two unregistered persons to register. We must have a number of our seniors who could receive this honor. If you would like to apply we have applications in the office.

Learn a craft

The craft room is open every day. There will be several projects being worked on at one time in the room. We know there will be one that will satisfy your interest. We have a senior who will be teaching quilt making. One is being made now. Another senior will be teaching sewing, from cutting out patterns to putting the finishing touches to an article. We have a very talented senior who is willing to teach craft articles and a senior who is talented in knitting and crocheting willing to teach anyone who would like to learn. What a wonderful way to spend a couple of hours a week, as not only will you learn a hobby but you will meet some nice people.

Puppies die in house fire

Two puppies died in a house fire Wednesday morning at the Randlett home at 139 Nichols St., Wilmington. The fire started in the kitchen, where the stove was left turned on. Deputy Chief Dan Stewart said the fire apparently smouldered a couple of hours before it was discovered at 11 a.m. Nobody was home at the time of the fire, but neighbors rescued an adult dog.

IN GRATITUDE

My family and I would like to extend our profound thanks and gratitude to the people and businesses of Wilmington for their warm support and kind offers of help after fire destroyed our main building February 23. So many offers were received that it is impossible to mention them all. I have never experienced such a sense of community support. This disaster has led me to realize the depth of generosity and compassion that resides in the human spirit, and it is this that I will remember most in years to come.

I would like to also thank the firefighters of Wilmington, North Reading, Woburn, Burlington and Reading for extinguishing the blaze and commend the admirable professionalism and efficiency which they demonstrated. The citizens of these communities should be grateful that their safety is entrusted to people of such caliber. We are genuinely relieved that none these fine public servants were injured.

I extend my thanks also to the various officials and departments of Wilmington and the Department of Environmental Quality Engineering, for their eager assistance and invaluable suggestions. My thanks also the State Police Arson Investigation Unit and to the Wilmington Police and Fire Departments for their efforts in the continuing investigation to determine the cause of the fire.

The response has been overwhelming, and I find that I cannot sufficiently express my gratitude. I may have lost a building, but that loss has been replaced with so much more -- a sense of brotherhood, and a renewed faith in the basic goodness of my fellow man. I am more determined than ever to rebuild and continue as a productive member of this community. This determination is largely due to the encouragement of friends, family, associates and community members who lent their support and words of wisdom. Again, I thank you all.

Sincerely,
Edward C. Whitney, Jr.

Winter Similes

The winter clouds were as fluffy as cotton.
The snowman was as hard as a rock.
The falling snow felt like ping pong balls on my head.
The snowbanks were as hard as goff balls.
The snowbanks were as high as mountains.

I Have a Dream
My dream for the world is peace. Peace is very important to me. I think everybody should like everyone. Countries shouldn't fight. I wouldn't want to be in a war. Look at all the people who have died in wars.

People shouldn't make fun of other nationalities. We are all different and that's what makes us special. Prejudices are what make us fight. Prejudice also makes wars. I would like to see everybody understand everybody. If I can try to understand everyone, will you try? If we all try to understand, it will make the world a better place to live in. Please help me make my dream come true.

Lying in the Snow
One day while I was making,
An angel in the snow,
I thought I saw something,
Like a little doe.
I saw a big, bright diamond,
Dazzling in the sky,
Then I saw a little doll,
With a big bow tie.
And to my surprise,
I saw a little bear,
Eating his supper,
On a little chair.
Then I saw a big, black cloud,
Maybe I was insane,
No, I really saw it,
I thin it is going to rain!

The Alligator
An ominous alligator coming for me.
It started to nibble on my knee.
He comes looking fierce and mean,
And also very clever and keen.
But that big, old alligator didn't scare me,
I hit him with a magic key.
Because I was so brave,
He ended up in his grave.
From now on that ominous alligator will not Becoming for thee.

If I had a size five foot,
If I lived in hay,
If I was covered with soot,
If, if, if, if, the whole day.

Everywhere that I may go,
You may hear me saying, "if!"
I even said to myself,
"What if I were frozen stiff?"

Sometimes saying "if" too much
Can really destroy your brain.
But, oops! Here I go again!
"What if we were made of rain?"

I really like to say "if."
It really does make me think.
But right now, I'm wondering.
"What if the world were to shrink?"

Ha, Ha! I just got a thought!
"What if I went to the moon?"
Wait! I'm off like a rocket!
Oh well, I will see you soon!

Despite tourney loss

Wildcats look to future

by Rick Cooke
Sports Editor

For the Wilmington High School basketball Wildcats, their future is right smack in front of them, and that future is very bright indeed despite last Wednesday night's 60-47 Division II first round Eastern Mass. Tournament loss to Dom Savio at Savio Hall in East Boston.

Coach Dave Ordorff took a team that won only one game just a couple of seasons back to an MVC title and a tournament berth for only the second time in over 20 years.

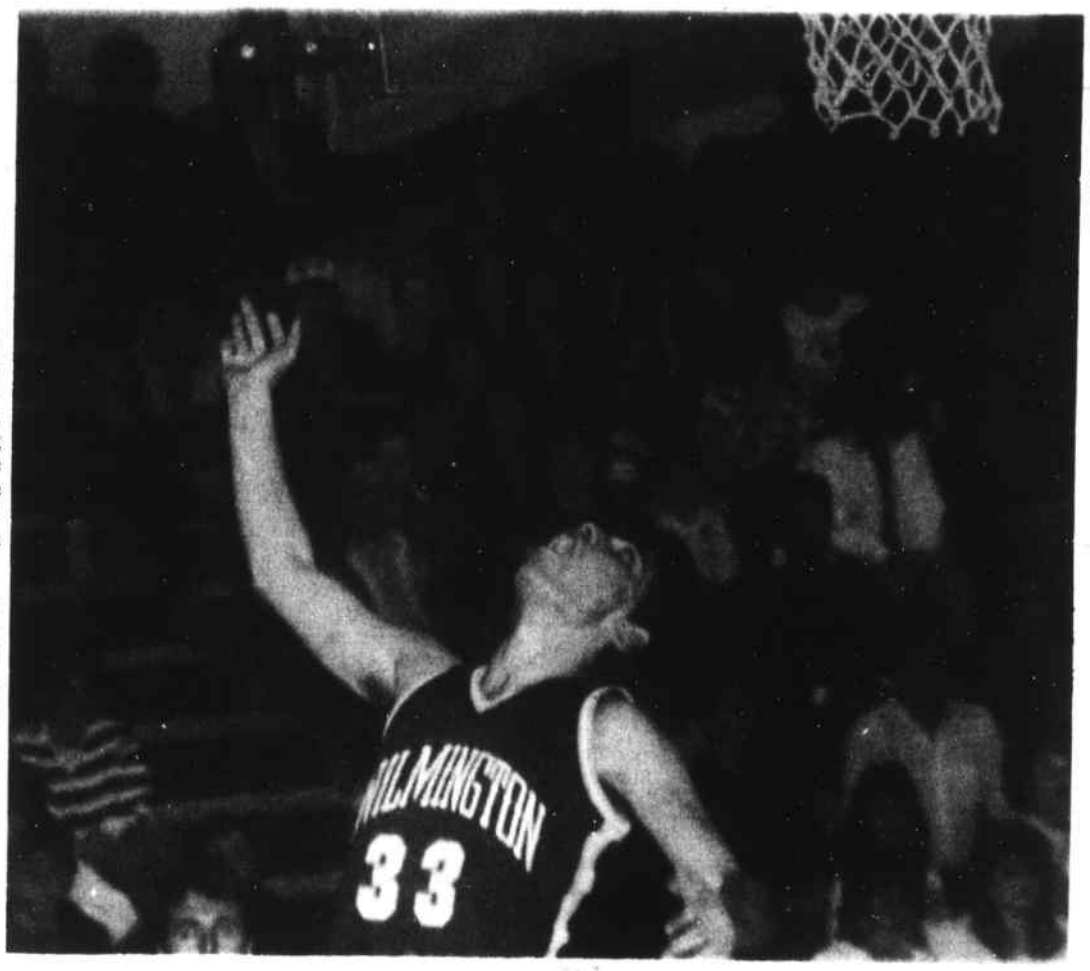
With 6'7" junior center Mike Lombard returning along with several key people and a much improved local recreation basketball program, Orndorff and the Wildcats are ready to put Wildcat basketball permanently on the Merrimack Valley Conference map.

In fact, the Wildcats weren't that far from advancing to round two in the tournament, trailing by only four, 42-38 with 6:20 remaining in the contest. Wilmington fell cold at that point however, as Dom Savio went on a 14-2 run to put the game away.

Lombard was a factor in sparking a gutsy Wildcat comeback that got the locals back in the game when they were trailing 36-23 in the third quarter. Lombard scored five of his 18 points during that third quarter surge that saw the Cats chop nine points off the Spartan lead.

Wilmington played very well despite its' lack of tourney experience. Helping the cause was the solid backcourt play of Jim Moynihan and Dan Woods along with the contributions of Joe McMenimen (nine points), George Fuller (six points), Tom Moran and senior forward Rob DeSantis with 10 points.

The Wildcats finish their season at 13-8 and should be the favorite in the MVC Small School division next seasoon led by conference MVP Mike Lombard. Now doesn't that have a nice ring to it ? It is far from over Wilmington roundball fans. It is only just beginning.



Valuable Wildcat

Wilmington High School senior Rob DeSantis was a valuable player in last Wednesday night's 60-47 tournament loss to Dom Savio. DeSantis scored 10 points in the WHS defeat. See story this page.

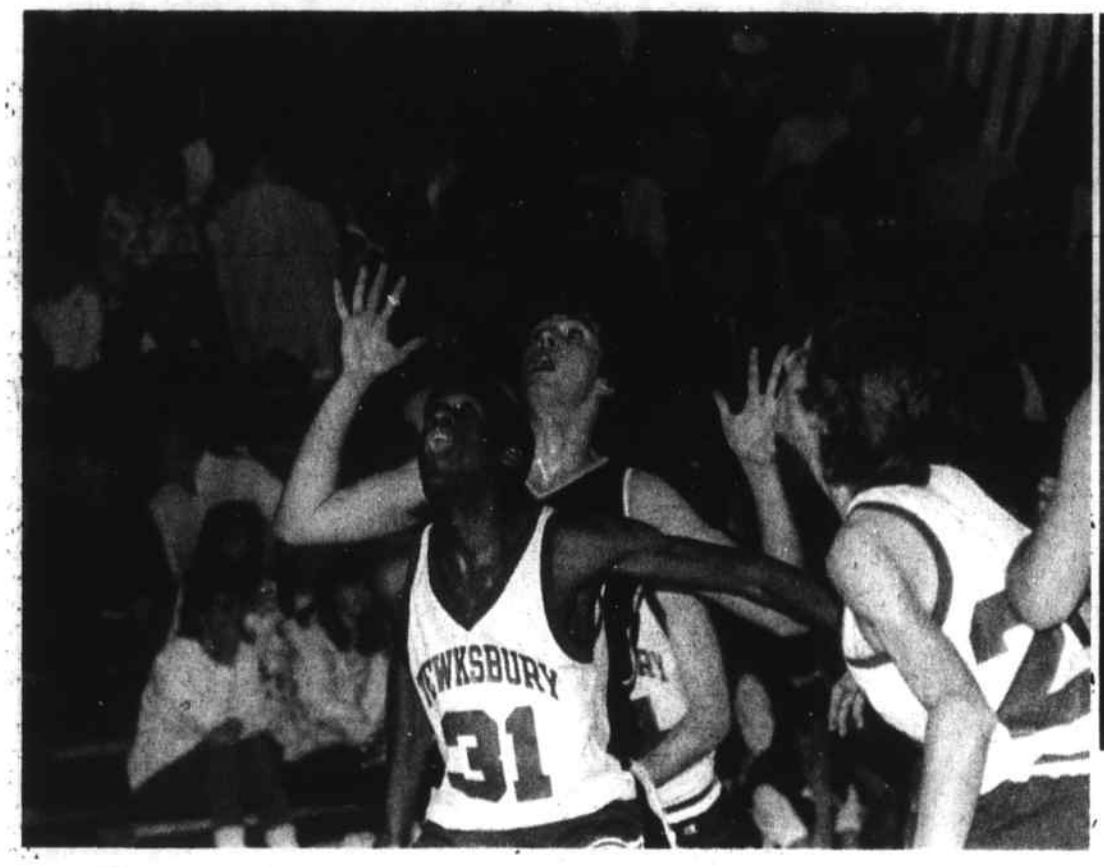
Just the beginning for Wilmington



Big men bix out

Tewksbury's Carl Melius attempts to box out conference MVP Mike Lombard as Redmen Rich Prince watches the action.

Coaches in control

Redmen coach Bob Melillo paces the sideline while Wildcat mentor Dave Orndorff watches his tourney bound Wildcats take charge in their regular season ending victory at Tewksbury.

College Corner

Moran scores game winner

Lake Forest clinched first place in the ACHA by sweeping Notre Dame, 5-4 in overtime and 5-3. The Foresters raised their record to 13-8-1 on the year with the sweep and assured themselves of bragging rights in the Midwest among small colleges and large universities.

In the opener, the Foresters trailed 4-1 starting the third period. Much like Mudville, where the day looked bleak, so too in Lake Forest the outlook was ominous.

But Kenny Spencer ('88, Barrington) and Marty Wittmer ('87, Grosse Point Woods, Mich.) snatched the sun from the clouds,unlike Mighty Casey, by scoring two goals apiece (one was scored earlier in the contest) to even the verdict 4-4 at the end of regulation.

As the overtime period began, Jim Elia ('89, Lodi, NJ) assisted Denny Moran ('89, Wilmington, Mass.) for the game winner in overtime.

Saturday night once again Lake Forest dug a hole, but they climbed out of it. Trailing the "Fighting Irish" 3-1 at the end of the first period on the strength of Wittmer's lone goal, the Foresters erupted to outscore Notre Dame 4-0 the rest of the contest.

Eric Van Acker ('88, Brighton, Mich.), Mike Whalen ('88, Chicago) and Lou Hondros ('87, Joliet) each scored to put Lake Forest ahead 4-3 near the end of the game.

Then Wittmer scored his fourth goal of the series on an empty-netted tally with little time left on the clock. The final score was 5-3.

Coach Fritz commented on the Notre Dame sweep with pride for his own team and respect for his opposition, "It feels wonderful! Any time you sweep Notre Dame, you know you are doing something. We had to come from behind both nights because Notre Dame is quick starting, but to win the conference in regular season action is very satisfying."

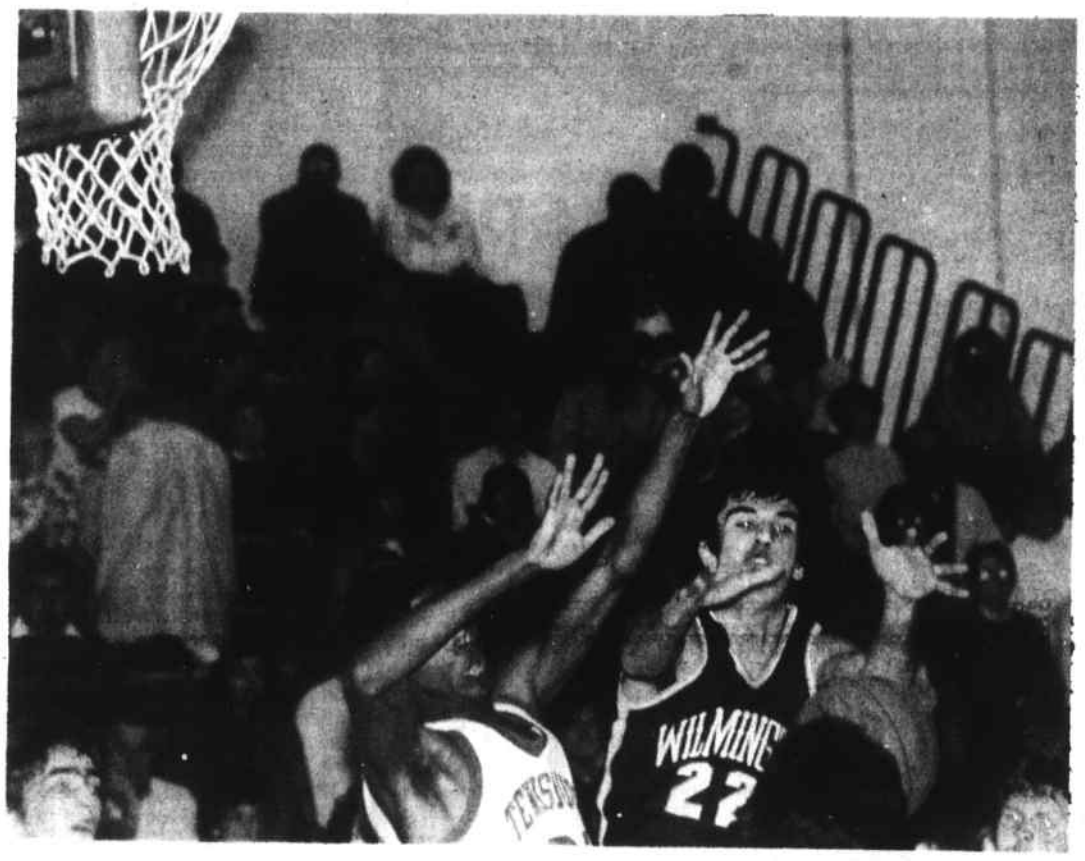
Aylward champ

Tewksbury High School senior Brian Aylward was voted the outstanding wrestler of the Division II State Championships after pinning Dedham's Paul Bossolini at 1:47 in their title showdown this past weekend at Wayland High School.

Heavyweight Dave Carciofi also won a championship, besting Dracut's Jamie Desmarais, 7-5.

Scott DeVivo placed second at 141 pounds, losing his title match, 7-2 to Masconomet's Shawn Perkins.

Coach Al Donovan's Redmen placed third behind Quabbin and Wellesley. Aylward, Carciofi and DeVivo now advance to this weekend's New England Championships at Chelmsford High School.



New dance in town

Carl Melius and Mike Lombard appear to have invented a wild new dance as they battle for position at Tewksbury.

Next week

Next week's Town Crier will include season ending reports on the TMHS hockey and girls' basketball squads, both of whom lost last week in EMass Tourney play. There will also be a report on the Shawsheen Tech hockey squad that has advanced in tourney play.

Outdoors column

by Bill Conlon

If the old saying is true -- that "March comes in like a lion and goes out like a lamb" -- look forward to a sunny, 80-degree day on April 1.

The weather on Sunday, March first, was atrocious. What a nightmare.

Wet, sloppy snow and drenching rains slanted down all day Sunday as 407 anglers took part in Merrimac Bait & Tackle's third tournament this year on Lake Attitash in Merrimac, Mass.

"If it was a warmer day, said Don Newcome, manager of Merrimac Bait, "we probably would have had a lot more people." Still, 407 is a superb turnout for any ice fishing contest.

Then again, offering a top prize of $1,000 is a sure-fire way of attracting attention.

To beat the soaking, some 150 cars, vans and trucks were driven onto the ice. While it's slightly unusual to have safe ice this late in the season, more than a foot of firm ice remains on Attitash and other lakes and ponds. There were no reported breakthroughs, even with so many vehicles on the ice.

First prize of $1,000 went to Ray Levine of Lowell for a 7-pound-1 pike, one of the first fish entered on the day. Newcome said the fish was later released back into Attitash.

Second prize of $500 went to Jerry Rowelx of E. Kingston, N.H. for a pickerel weighing 4-pounds. Third and $250 went to David Hinckley of Westford for a pickerel weighing 2-pounds-14; while Bob Buterlia of nearby Ward Hill took fourth and $200 for a 2-pound-1 bass.

Fifth place and $150 went to Mike Marquis of Newburyport for a bass of 2-pounds; sixth and $75 was nabbed by Tewksbury's Tom Bernard for a 1-pound-10 bass; and Drew O'Connell of Groton took seventh and $75 for a 1-pound-9 white perch.

Eighth place and $50 went to Al Van Dooren of Andover for a 1-pound-8 bass; while ninth and $50 went to Attitash veteran Don Dunn of Dracut for a 1-pound-6 bass which was brought in just before the close of the derby.

Tenth place was a tie, and while Newcombe said it was not his usual policy, he gave $50 each to Tom Casale of North Andover and Ed Spang of Wakefield, both for bass weighing 1-pound-5 and stretching to 13 3/4 inches. The tenth place prize was only supposed to be $50.

Your author, by the way, did manage to catch something at Attitash, unlike his three previous outings. A 14-ounce black crappie (or "calico bass") was brought to the weigh-table by yours truly, and the speckled fish held onto ninth place for perhaps all of 10 minutes.

This scribe did, however, get soaked to the bone while standing in the cold rain all day.

But at least I caught something!

The ice fishing season is hardly over yet, not while there's more than a foot of ice remaining. For those who enjoy late-season ice fishing, a derby is planned on Artichoke Pond in Newburyport this Sunday, March 8 at $10 each.

Two hunter safety courses are planned for the next few weeks, both of them free to the public.

The Tewksbury Rod & Gun club will begin a free hunter safety course beginning on Thursday, March 5, and running until April 16 at their Chandler Street location. Class begins at 7 p.m.

Another free hunter safety course will be conducted at the Woburn Sportsman's Association clubhouse on March 9, 16, 18, 23, 30 and April 1, also beginning at 7 p.m. The Woburn clubhouse is located on the Middlesex turnpike about 3 1/2 miles north of the Burlington Mall, opposite Oak Park.

The Woburn Sportsmen will also offer an NRA home firearms safety course on March 25 from 7 to 11 p.m. and March 28 from noon until 5 p.m. There will be a $15 fee for the NRA course for instructional materials and ammo. Call Dick at 926-2556 or Brian at 686-0466 for further details.

Does anyone out there know Kevin Therrien?

While fly fishing on Onota Lake in Pittsfield last May, Kevin Therrien hooked a 7-1/2 pound rainbow, registered the fish for the state's annual Sportfishing Awards program. Kevin's trout was the biggest rainbow caught in Massachusetts last year, and the state now has a gold pin and commemorative plaque waiting for him.

But he since moved, and now the state can't find him.

All attempts to contact Kevin have failed, so if you know him, please tell Kevin to call Peter Mirick at 366-4479.

The state Freshwater Sportfishing Awards program, by the way, hands out bronze pins to all fisherfolk who make catches over a certain size limit, and award a gold pin and a plaque for the biggest fish caught every year, by species. The minimum weights by species may be found in the abstracts of the fish and game laws, and Bob's Bait and Tackle in Chelmsford is the nearest certified weigh station.

Andrea Paglia announces candidacy for school committee

I am a self-proclaimed keeper of the dandelions. Dandelions are deep rooted, steadfast and annoying to those who don't appreciate them. Unfortunately, for my neighbors, I enjoy them. Ever since I was little and discovered those "prippy fa-fas (pretty flowers)" all over my world, they have shared a very close kinship with children to me. Children, too, are deep rooted, steadfast and annoying to those who don't appreciate them - I love them!

My personal philosophy is that we all need a "yard." A yard, to me, is a special place for adventure, freedom within the boundaries to expand one's mind--the sky's the limit. For each child, a yard is a place to develop dreams and run with them. I am most fortunate to have a physical yard, but its the concept I treasure the most. So who cares, right? There is a reason for me to establish this premise; it is that school, too, is a yard of sorts. Within its boundaries, a child can expand his mind, develop his dreams and discover the means to run with it.

Imagine in kindergarten (children's garden) alone, the new little dandelions begin to develop an understanding of boundaries, but take their first steps to their dreams. When I share any moment in the schools, I see this concept--feel the dreams--and hunger to preserve it. This is why I am running for School Committee.

Their future--our future--will emerge from our schools. School is always a controversial subject. Emotions, budgets, laws, and mandates don't always mix. Understanding and knowledge of each of these is a difficult balance to maintain. As a parent, without prior political commitment, but who has researched certain laws and issues; I hope to provide some leverage to attain and hopefully assist maintenance of the best balance possible for my precious dandelions--our children.

In all fairness to the public, I will share the who behind the whys.

I am Andrea M. Paglia, and/or Mrs. Kenneth Paglia, and/or Andrew, Victoria and Regina's mother. With each of these titles, I am equally proud and comfortable. Like all of us, I have shared in the joys and heartaches of daily living to enhance who I am. Life has generously provided me with reasons to keep a healthy balance.

My formal education exceeds high school by completing nurse's training in 1971. Work experience in this field as well as being blessed with two marvelous parents (who saw and encouraged the practical application of formal education) allowed me to believe in myself. More so, I am blessed with nine wonderful siblings; which saw to keeping that belief relative to the belief in another's importance. I will be eternally grateful for this and will continue to practice the valuable lessons of this informal, yet, equally important education.

The most cherished of my blessings is a sense of humor. It enables me to laugh at myself; so, when any of the above gets way off course, I can rely on my humor to bring me back toward the right direction.

I wish to serve our children with your vote of confidence, as well as the one on the ballot.

Thank you.

Sincerely
Andrea M. Paglia

Zukas seeks re-election to school committee

Bridget (Connolly) Zukas has announced her candidacy for re-election to the Wilmington School Committee.

A resident of Wilmington for 12 years, Mrs. Zukas is a native of Ireland. She was educated in Ireland and England and completed her education in the U.S., receiving her bachelor's degree from Regis College and her master's degree in education from Boston University.

For 16 years the candidate served the Archdiocese of Boston as a member of the Congregation of the Sisters of St. Joseph. She is married and the mother of two children: Anna, a ninth grader at Wilmington High School and Joseph, a fifth grader at the Woburn Street School. She lives at 50 McDonald Road.

When Mrs. Zukas first sought election to the School Committee in 1981, the most serious problem facing the Wilmington School system was: adjusting to Proposition 2 1/2. When she ran in 1984, we were enmeshed in "Renovate to Educate."

The foundation was being laid for a 6.5 million dollar addition and renovation of the high school.

In her opinion, the challenge facing the Wilmington School system over the next few years is the fact that at the secondary level, the faculty is aging together and that there are not adequate replacements. Proposition 2 1/2, in effect, phased out most of the young teaching blood at the secondary level. So now, there is a gap, between the few teachers right out of school that we have, and the bulk of the faculty which has over 20 years experience. If a conscientious effort is not made to bring in people who are young and qualified, we will be unable to provide the students of Wilmington with the necessary balance of youth and experience, when some of the members of our very fine faculty retire within the next five years.

If Mrs. Zukas is re-elected she will make an even stronger effort to hire young people who are qualified for positions that become available. She will continue to see that the talented personnel we now have, are paid a salary which is competitive with surrounding communities. Mrs. Zukas will also try to be available to the students and parents of Wilmington should they need her help with the various problems that arise during their school years.

Dr. Thomas running for school committee

I am Dr. Michael J. Thomas. I am a seven year resident of 2 Federal Street, with my wife and three daughters here in Wilmington and I am seeking the election of the two year seat on the Wilmington School Committee.

I was originally educated in Michigan at Sacred Heart Seminary in Detroit, and a graduate of Port Huron Catholic High School in 1971. I attended Saint Clare County Community College and Michigan State University, and completed my Bachelors in Human Biology at the National College of Chiropractic where I also received my Doctorate in December 1978.

While attending the National College, I was a member of Delta Tau Alpha Honorary Fraternity, and recipient of the College's Service Scholarship. I have been in private practice in Massachusetts since September of 1980. I have been a guest lecturer at Boston University School of Physiotherapy for two years, and a member of various local and state societies. Presently, I am working on my Diplomate status in the International College of Applied Kinesiology where I have been published several times in the Collected Papers of the I.C.D.A., and for two years have served as Editor of the New England Journal of Chiropractic where I have also been published.

My teaching experience has been limited to the graduate level where I taught both Normal Radiographic Anatomy and Xray Physics at the National College of Chiropractic.

I am a member of Rotary since moving to Wilmington, and have served as Chairmen for four years of the Thanksgiving Day Pancake Breakfast which helps serve the funds for the Senior scholarships.

I have been active in Wilmington K of C, and am Past Grand Knight of the Fr. Croke Council, and have been chairman for two years of the Tootsie Roll Drive for retarded children.

I am not a politician. I have never been involved in politics nor have I ever shown any real interest in politics. However, the position for two year seat on the Wilmington School Committee should not be that of a political one. My reasons for running are the following:

1. A genuine concern and interest in continuing the quality of education in the Wilmington school system.

2.A healthy and normal social and academic easement of the sixth grade into the intermediate school system.

3. Continued quality maintenance and upkeep of the buildings for all concerned and involved.

Our schools primary interest should be the education of the children. If we cannot make the programs available, affordable, and enriching for them, then we serve no reason for a school committee or the upkeep of buildings. These are all real concerns, but the students should come first. Your sharing of these ideals and goals with the next two years can be accomplished by casting your vote for me on the 18th of April. Here's to the continued success of the Wilmington School system!

Sincerely submitted,
Dr. Michael J. Thomas

Joanne Neale seeks school committee seat

Joanne Neale is a candidate for one of the three year seats on the Wilmington School Committee. A graduate of Burdett College, Boston, Mass., she has lived in Wilmington with her husband Jay and two daughters Jenna and Janeen for a little over 10 years. Mrs. Neale's children attend the Shawsheen Elementary School. She has been actively involved in various aspects of the Wilmington School System.

Mrs. Neale's involvement includes:

a) Regular attendance at all School Committee meetings for the past four years.

b) Active member of the Shawsheen School PAC (Parent Advisory Council) for five years and president for the past three years.

c) Active member of the Superintendent's Task Force for the Renovation of the High School.

d) Working member of the Shawsheen School Self-Evaluation Steering Committee.

e) Superintendent's Screening Committee of applicants for the Principalship of the Shawsheen School.

Her vast experience in the PAC has established a solid foundation for working with administrators, teachers and parents for the benefit of the children. Mrs. Neale will bring this expertise to her role as a School Committee member. She is not afraid of hard work, dedication to the job and doing her homework on issues pertaining to education which she has demonstrated in her role as PAC President. "I see the role of the School Committee member as someone who can listen to the concerns of parents, teachers, administrators, students and fellow board members; research the facts, and make a decision on what he or she feels will be in the best interest of our system as a whole."

Some specific areas of concern are: at the Elementary Level along with the ongoing concentration for improving math skills, we must continue to strongly reinforce the language/arts areas of verbal and written communication skills. For the intermediate level she feels it will be the School Committee's task to insure that the administration implements the reorganization to grades six, seven and eight so as to bring about a smooth transition and minimize parents' fears and concerns. At the high school level she is anxious to see the completion of the renovation with full utilization of the new facilities.

"I believe that public school education in Wilmington is on the upswing and I would very much like to be a part of continuing that direction. I believe that all children, with their varying degrees of abilities, can and should be offered an equal opportunity to obtain a quality education. Our obligation is to provide and maintain a system that will encompass all their capabilities and goals and insure that when they graduate they will be well prepared for their future as productive young adults."

James Babineau is school committee candidate

I, James Babineau, of 88 McDonald Road, am announcing my candidacy for the two year seat on the Wilmington School Committee. I have been a resident of Wilmington for nine years. I am the father of five daughters, ages seven to one. I currently have two of my daughters in the Wilmington schools and will have a third one entering in the fall. I therefore have an immediate reason for running for this position.

My educational background includes a Bachelor's degree from Boston State College and a Master's degree from Northeastern University. I have taken post-graduate courses from Salem State, University of Lowell, and Tufts University.

I have been employed as a mathematics teacher in the Melrose Public Schools for the last 12 years. My work also includes seven years as a recreation leader in Somerville, eight years as a summer school instructor, pediatric volunteer at the Massachusetts General Hospital for three years, and developer of a pre-school recreational program for the Melrose Public Schools.

My educational experiences are highlighted by my internship on a Navajo Indian Reservation in New Mexico. This experience provided me with a keen insight into another culture and how this culture affects the education of young children.

Recently I was one of three candidates from the Melrose Public Schools for the NASA Teacher-In-Space Program. This interest in the space program is evident in my math classes. I use it as a vehicle to develop math problems and challenges for students.

I also have administrative experience in my position as President of the Melrose Education Association. This position provides me with a firm understanding of teacher concerns. An informed committee member on issues directly affecting classroom teachers can alleviate problems before they occur.

The interaction between teachers and students is the essence of the educational system. All the elements of an innovative curriculum, together with the presence of strong administrators, provide the catalyst for the system to work.

However, the student-teacher relationship is what insures that learning will occur. My philosophy of education is a result of this strong relief that I have in the student-teacher relationship. This philosophy is displayed in my everyday working with students of all levels. This philosophy will cause me to render decisions based on student needs and concerns.

Finally, I feel that because of my background, I would have the knowledge to address the issues affecting Wilmington. Such issues as the middle school reorganization, the extended kindergarten day, and the recruitment of effective personnel for the school system would be dealt with in a professional and diligent manner.

Lynnfield 'A Heritage Preserved'

Part II

By JIM ROUILLARD

LYNNFIELD — He issued his chronicle from Willow Castle here, touching briefly on hound's-tongue, his Satanic Majesty, and Sam Adams' shoe buckles.

Yet he skirted the issue of too free-flowing rum.

Writing on New Year's day in 1895, local historian Thomas Wellman opened his "little gem" of a town history with notes on herbs and topography — but prefaced them with praise of neighboring communities:

"Wakefield boasts of her beautiful situation ... of superb ponds, and general enterprise, while Reading is noted for good morals, intelligence (and) ponderous families ..."

More than 250 years from the time the first white man's "dugout" home was established in Lynnfield, Wellman would pen, with humor and quiet satisfaction, a quaint and sentimental historical journey from the home he called "Willow Castle" in Lynnfield Centre.

Having introduced the neighbors, Wellman set out in earnest to present the history of Lynnfield. The work was described in 1973 by Russell S. Knower:

"At a time when the writing of town histories was in vogue, he completed a little gem: his legacy to future generations of townspeople."

And Wellman's history is a little gem: nostalgic, reminiscent, touching, amusing, largely anecdotal.

After listing 54 medicinal plants which abound in the "well-watered township," including life everlasting, mother-wort, and apple of Peru, he continues with a trio of nasties:

"For poisons may be found the thorn apple, nightshade and ivy."

Wellman's listing of the predominance of wholesome versus poisonous still seems apt — for Lynnfield today remains a very quiet, fine and private place.

Its tiny meeting house, though no longer used as place of worship or seat of government, is probably the third oldest

LYNNFIELD S-4

LYNNFIELD'S CENTRE CONGREGATIONAL CHURCH, which evolved from schism to success. The present handsome, sprawling building overlooking town "green" began life in embryo as "Orthodox Evangelical Society" in 1832. Unable to accept prevailing Unitarian theology, 12 members withdrew from the First Congregational Society and old 1714 meeting house, moved across the street, and flourished.

A report from Newport

FM TALK: Thoughts that crossed our far-flung correspondent's mind this week, including a report from Newport:

This far-flung correspondent couldn't make it to Australia this year for the America's Cup finals, but I did the next best thing — I journeyed down to Newport, R.I., for a few days to mingle with the locals, lift a mug or two of draft beer, and help myself get over a case of the mid-winter blues. The best part of the getaway weekend was finding out what the Newport locals thought about Dennis Conner and his crew aboard Stars & Stripes winning back the America's Cup from the Australians. You don't have to ask; the folks in Newport are so crazy about sailing that they let you know even if you don't want to know. The races were held on the other side of the world, but you wouldn't know it to spend a few days in Newport. The folks down there act as if the finals were held right there. And don't dare bring up the possibility that the next America's Cup races will be held in Hawaii. As far as they're concerned, the Cup is back and it's theirs to own, now and forever.

The most vocal of those to whom I spoke was a young fellow by the name of Michael Murphy, who works as a bartender at a fancy restaurant called Astor's, which was located inside the well-known Inn on the Harbor, on Thames Street, which also happened to be where I stayed during my visit. It turned out that Mike was a member of an organization which calls itself the America's Cup Club. I first heard about the America's Cup Club four years ago, shortly after the Aussie's took the Cup away from us. I was in Newport at the time, and became curious about the club and what its purpose was. The club turned out to be just a group of die-hard sailing buffs who had taken it upon themselves to become the unofficial cheerleaders for the American entries in the recent America's Cup competition.

Not much was heard from the club until the actual races began. Then we began to hear a lot from them and about them. Unlike a college fraternity party that turns unruly and then is forgotten, the antics of this club made headlines. Two of the America's Cup Club members achieved notoriety when they leaped all the way from the upper deck of the first-class liner Achille Lauro, which was the official cruise ship of Australia's defense of the America's Cup, into the swimming pool.

The International Yachting Jury had selected the Achille Lauro as its daily viewing platform for the whole series. When the races were not in progress, more eyes may have been on the members of the America's Cup Club. The Australian press dubbed the two daring members, who had managed somehow to remain anonymous to authorities and reporters, as "The Newport Jumpers".

Well, I have it from good sources that one of those two Newport Jumpers was Michael Murphy, the dashing bartender from Astor's Restaurant. In fact, I am the first columnist to reveal his name, and hopefully I've beat David Letterman to the punch, since I've been told Letterman has been trying like the dickens to get these guys on his show.

After a lot of prodding and a few good tips, Mike finally admitted that he indeed was one of the club members who'd caused so much excitement aboard the Achille Lauro during the America's Cup finals. "Yeah, yeah, that was me," he said, and admitting it was all it took for him to reveal a pile of press clippings and photos that were acquired during the members' jaunt to down under.

As Mike passed me one clipping and picture after another, he went on to explain more about the America's Cup Club. "It was started the day after the Aussies won the Cup in '83. Our president is a guy by the name of Joe Vars, who owns a place called the Boat House Pub, which is a nice little family restaurant here in Newport."

Mike and Joe and the rest of the members of the America's Cup Club had just returned to Newport from Freemantle, Australia, the day before my arrival. "Most of us stayed on the Achille Lauro," he went on. "A few stayed on land. But no matter where we stayed, our presence was felt."

He wasn't kidding. He handed me a clipping from the Freo Gazette, which featured a big headline exclaiming "Two Yanks Jump Off Deck of Achille Lauro Into Pool". The story below it went on to identify the "poolbusters" as "The Newport Jumpers." The local Aussies got into some good-natured competition with the club members by poking fun at them. The members responded, of course, by giving the Aussies something more to write about in their newspapers.

"The next day, after considerable encouragement from my colleagues, I was right back up on the rafters again," Mike revealed. "Despite all the heavy security that was placed on the upper deck to keep me from making another jump, I was not to be denied. Before they could draw the nets across the pool, I made one more jump."

The second leap was Mike's last, since he was certain that his identity would be discovered. He wasn't about to miss out on the remainder of the America's Cup finals, nor was he going to be excluded from the pomp and circumstance on board the Achille Lauro. "That night I had dinner at the Captain's table," said Mike. "I had the feeling they knew all along that I was the one who'd made the jumps, but I never told them. That night I made myself a promise not to jump again."

There is no way of knowing how much influence the America's Cup Club had on Dennis Conner and the crew of the Stars & Stripes and their re-capturing of the America's Cup, but one thing is certain: all the members had a great time representing Newport, and for that matter, America, from the cheering stands aboard the Achille Lauro. "I'm sure the Aussies won't forget us," Mike added gleefully.

We'll be looking for you on the Letterman Show, Mike.

One final thought on my recent trip to Newport: The trip was made with my great and good buddy, Tony Resta, former drummer for the popular rock group Astra. Tony was instrumental in helping me get over my case of mid-winter blues. He owns a beautiful condominium near the water, and it was the ideal location from which to observe the tranquil silver water in Newport Harbor this time of year.

Tony will probably never speak to me again for what I'm about to write, but I feel it is absolutely necessary that you read it anyway. Tony is an extremely fastidious young man, and he would never go away to a place like Newport without first making sure he had everything he needed to make sure the weekend was free of any faux pas. He came up with a Newport "checklist, which I found delightfully amusing, and I'd like to share it with you, just in case you're planning a trip to Newport yourself in the near future.

Tony's Newport checklist consisted of the following:

Decksiders; A Ralph Lauren sweater; Polo shirts; A bottle of Stolichnya vodka; Martini glasses; Olives; American Express card; Gucci cologne; A French sailor shirt; Leather suspenders; Pocket watch; Vaurnet sunglasses.

Well, there you have it, just in case, as I said. Meanwhile, even if you are not planning a trip to Newport and you don't have any use for the aforementioned list, have a happy and safe week anyway. And please, Tony, don't be angry with me.

Puritan meeting house in Massachusetts still standing on its original "green." Wellman, in fact, notes with pride that Boston's Old South Meeting House was built in 1730, "so that we see there is not a church edifice in the metropolis which has attained the age of this one."

But well before establishment of the meeting house in 1714, with the first land grants in Lynnfield issued in the 1630s, other structures had been erected, with frame dwellings, " 'fearfully and wonderfully made,' " according to Wellman, beginning to appear about 1650.

From Marcia Wiswall's "Lynnfield, A Heritage Preserved (1973)":

"Each summer more shiploads of colonists arrived on the coast and more settlers came inland to Lynn End. Frame houses began to appear within a decade, four of which are still standing. Several contain secret rooms where women and children hid during Indian raids. Some have underground passages to slave cellars used during the Civil War."

Chronicler Nathan Hawkes, in his "Hearths and Homes of Old Lynn" (1907) described these early frame dwellings as "square, prim and strong."

Likewise, life among the local Puritans has been variously described and celebrated. Wiswall again: "The Sabbath was observed with greatest strictness — people were not allowed to ride fast, or visit from place to place ...

"Certain aspects of life were governed by the General Court, including the type of dress which could be worn ... Selectmen were notified to 'see what persons wore costly apparell, especially of ribbands and great bootes.'

"The public use of tobacco was prohibited ... and for speaking to a young lady without the permission of her parents a man was subject to a fine of five pounds."

Lynnfield (then Lynn End) grew and continued as part of Lynn, according to Wiswall, where freemen voted and where some residents attended church — others going to "Redding" because of the distance to the meeting house in Lynn — until the area was set off as a separate parish.

It is well-known, as Nathan Hawkes noted in 1888, that "Church and State were ... intimately blended in the early days," yet Wellman, with the tongue-in-cheek charm that characterizes his book, touches on a different aspect of theology:

"Lynnfield abounds with samples of stone, should anyone want them. It is said that his Satanic Majesty holds possession of a portion of every town in the shape of a rock or some stream. Here he had credit by the Indians for marking the bed of Saugus River ... A portion of Reedy Meadow is also named the 'Devil's Kitchen,' and another the 'Devil's Garden,' although why is more than we can tell."

Wellman devotes some space to ancient houses of Lynnfield, dwelling with pride on the solidity of construction. He refers to one of the Hart family houses, for example, where silkworms used to be cultivated — in typical fashion of lacing the brief chapter with little anecdotes about some of the early homes.

He notes that the time it was built (1720) the gambrel-roofed Captain Thomas Flint House, for example, was considered the grandest house in town:

"The western part used to be kept closed and the family were forbidden to enter. A girl who lived in the family, while they were at meeting, thought she would view the premises. While in the front chamber she heard a sound and, fearing a surprise, jumped out of the end window and caused her death ...

"From the same house were sent to the centennial of 1876 the shoe buckles of Samuel Adams, the patriot."

Marcia Wiswall, thanks to what must have involved exhaustive research into the old homes of Lynnfield, produced a more extensive and detailed history of 45 buildings.

Perhaps the oldest house in Lynnfield (1667), the Joseph Henfield House, also on Main Street, is the most interesting. Wiswall: "The spacious yard ... was once so steep that only the tops of the carriages could be seen from the windows. Many years ago this hill was removed and six or eight feet below the surface was found a place full of ashes, bricks and household implements, no doubt the site of what was once an underground pioneer home ...

"From the dugout, an underground tunnel led to a secret room in the house ... The secret room was discovered when one of the owners noticed that some of the bricks in the rear wall of the front hall closet were loose. When removed, a square large enough for a person to climb through revealed a room five and one-half feet square, with a vaulted ceiling vented into the chimney. By replacing the loose bricks after crawling through, the family could hide here from Indians and be relatively safe in the event the house was burned."

But it is the Joseph Tapley House on Lowell Street which deserves final mention. Built circa 1700, it was bought in 1783 by Revolutionary War soldier Joseph Tapley, when he moved from Danvers to Lynnfield to take up farming.

"As Lynn and surrounding towns grew and expanded," Wiswall continues, "the house became known as 'Tapley's Tavern,' sheltering and feeding travelers on the old turnpike between Lowell and Salem. The boundary marker between Lynnfield and Reading was at one time located across the street from the center of the house, and it is a legend that at one time the good people of Lynn decided to raid the tavern because rum was being dispensed too freely.

"Word got to the owners by the grapevine so that when the authorities arrived the bar had been moved from the east room into the west room — across the boundary line into Reading."

Next: Conclusion — Black Marble, Orthodoxy and Magnesium Bombs.

John L. Sullivan

By ANTHONY MANCONI

Every era in history has had men and women who have been in the "Limelight of popularity." They were looked upon by their admiring followers as "models" of excellence. Their fields of endeavor were varied representing the predominate field of interest of that particular period of time. In Caesar's reign, military heros and their conquests held everyone spellbound. During World War I, Florence Nightingale was loved and revered as an "Angel of Mercy." In the 1930s it was Babe Ruth, the Sultan of Swat who was idolized by sport loving baseball fans in America and Japan. The world of fisticuffs has had many professional boxers but none more popular than John L. Sullivan, "The Boston Strong Boy." He was born October 15, 1858, in Boston. He attended school there and for a time studied at Boston College. At the age of 19, he launched his professional boxing career. John L. Sullivan was supreme at the rough-and-ready style and in 1882, he knocked out Paddy Ryan in nine rounds to win the World's Heavyweight title. He held that crown until September 7, 1892, when, James J. Corbett, known as "Gentleman Jim" knocked Sullivan out in 21 rounds at New Orleans, Louisiana. In the last bare-knucle fight of his professional boxing career, Sullivan knocked out Jake Kilrain in 1889, won a 75-round battle that lasted 2 hours and 25 minutes and 25 seconds. John L. Sullivan earned more than one million dollars but being generous of heart and charitable to a fault, (a trait common to the Irish), his wealth soon disappeared.

In a wonderful movie called "Gentleman Jim" played by Errol Flynn with Ward Bond as John L. Sullivan, there was a scene that I will never forget. The kind-hearted Sullivan had sent a season pass to Father Jerimah Murray, an avid fan of the Boston Braves. The scene shows Fr. Murray returning the pass saying, "John, I thank you with all my heart for your generosity, but I cannot in good conscious accept your gift. I would like to be present at every Braves practice, every warm up session and every game but it would be to the detriment of my primary goal in life--my priestly duties. Thank you, John, and may God bless you." That scene vividly displayed the humanitarian qualities of John Sullivan and the practice of moderation of a gentle "Man of the Cloth" whose love of baseball was shunted aside for the more important work of administering to his flock.

John L. Sullivan was as compassionate outside the boxing ring as he was a ferocious tiger in it. He could pick up a child and tenderly hug it in his massive chest and perhaps that very night those same hands with one punch send an opponent flying through the ropes. He was idolized by the men, loved by the women and respected by every man that ever entered a boxing ring. Many boasted that they "shook the hand of John L. Sullivan." We can boast too that he was Irish, that he was born in Boston and that he brought honor and glory to the name of Sullivan. The title of heavyweight champion was taken away from him by Gentleman James Corbett, but no man could ever take away the love, respect and admiration that the people had for "The Boston Strong Boy," the great John L. Sullivan.

Beepers before birth

Although expectant parents can spend months preparing for their new child, they often have little control over the timing of the baby's birth. The days and weeks prior to the delivery can be particularly stressful for new parents who wonder, "How will I know when it is time to take my wife to the hospital if I'm traveling," or "What if I can't reach my husband when I go into labor?"

Winchester Hospital is now offering beepers to couples delivering at the hospital in an effort to make the delivery process as smooth and stress-free as possible. Response to the program has been overwhelming.

"Having the beeper during those crucial weeks before our child's birth was very comforting to both my husband and me," said Reading resident Laurie Keith, noting that renting a beeper through a private company often requires a three-month commitment. "Since we only needed to use the beeper for a few weeks, getting it through the hospital was very convenient. It helped to put us at ease."

The service is free of charge to all maternity patients delivering at the hospital, and reservations are required. For further information, call Winchester Hosital at 729-9000, ext. 3069.

MOVIE REVIEWS Rochelle Flynn

Some kind of Wonderful
Short Takes

Some Kind of Wonderful Starring Eric Stoltz, Mary Stuart Masterson, Craig Sheffer and Lea Thompson. Directed by Howard Deutch. Written and produced by John Hughes.

A lot of the plot in Ferris Bueller's Day Off was silly and unrealistic, but because it was a comedy, it didn't matter very much. Actually, the sillier it got, the more we laughed. And, while the latest from writer/director/producer John Hughes does have its funny moments, it is not essentially a comedy, and when the plot overrides normal conventions, the results are heavy-handed and stilted.

Eric Stoltz Mask plays a high school senior who is best friends with a tomboy (Mary Stuart Masterson), but in love with the class beauty. The beauty, played by Lea Thompson, is as poor as Stoltz, but runs with a rich crowd. They are, as is often the case in these teen flicks, a shallow, cruel bunch whose combined intellect is about as deep as their tans. Stoltz is going to save her from all that, never realizing, or at least not right away, that his heart belongs with the tomboy, which we knew all along.

Perhaps if the movie wasn't so completely predictable, it might work better. However, there are moments when flashes of Hughes' magic touch pop onto the screen, such as when Stoltz gets himself into detention to be with Thompson, but instead finds himself trapped in a basement room with the school's thugs. Or when his father drops into the school to talk to his son's guidance counselor, and calls attention to himself by waving to his daughter in front of her class. Her piercing scream is funny because we all wanted to disappear under the floorboards when our folks came to school. It is apparent at that moment that Hughes knows what it's like to be young and awkward.

When Hughes' comedy works it is because his audience can relate to the humor. But when he sidetracks into complete fantasyland he loses us. Therefore, when Stoltz takes the girl of his dreams on a magical date that would be impossible for a teenager to arrange, and later is suddenly protected from Thompson's nasty boyfriend by the thugs, the story has become so obvious that it loses the light, cheerful tone that has worked so well in Hughes' other films, like Sixteen Candles.

One can't help but assume that this will be one of the least successful of Hughes' films because he did not direct it, but simply wrote and produced it. It never gets a chance to rise above mediocrity because director Howard Deutch is intent on spelling out the message of this film in single-syllable words. Luckily, the charisma of the three stars, especially Stoltz, balances some of the pretentions and MTV-like editing a few of the scenes have.

While this may sound harsh for a film that isn't all that bad, it is because this film is such a disappointment. One expects more than a middle-of-the-road script from someone with as much talent as Hughes.

Nightmare on Elm Street 3 - Dream Warriors Starring Craig Wasson, Patricia Arquette, Priscilla Pointer, Robert Englund. Directed by Chuck Russell. Produced by Robert 'Shaye. Written by Wes Craven and Bruce Wagner. Rated R (profanity, violence, brief nudity).

Freddy, a walking image of the bogeyman, is back, only this time around he's about as scary as Casper the Friendly Ghost.

For anyone who missed A Nightmare on Elm Street or its sequel, Freddy Krueger, played by Robert Englund, is the ghoulish apparition, a mass of scar tissue who wears a glove tipped with razor sharp knives. In the original film he existed somewhere between his victims' dream state and consciousness, able to cross over at will. He was a terrifying creation because of the Freudian overtones and psychological angst. The movie wasn't just gory, it was really scary, and a lot of fun for those of us who enjoy a cheap thrill on occasion.

By the time Freddy returned in the sequel, however, the thrill was gone. Wes Craven, the director and writer of the original film didn't have anything to do with the sequel, and it was, in a word, lousy. In the current sequel to the sequel, Craven returned as co-writer and as one of the executive producers. He shouldn't have bothered.

What is wrong is overkill. The special effects envelop and crush the kernel of the story about several teenagers suffering from similar sleep disorders. They have become suicidal and are locked up in an institution. What is really wrong with them is Freddy, a child molester who was burned alive by the outraged parents who lived on Elm Street many years ago. You don't have to have much of an intellect to figure out what the link is between the kids. Anyway, if you have much of an intellect you won't waste your money on this Nightmare.

Craig Wasson and Priscilla Pointer as the two doctors trying to help the troubled teens give new meaning to the term minimalistic acting. And from the opening scene we are bombarded with an unending stream of frightening images that become laughable and then dull. The story becomes more and more inane so that by the time a spectre decked out as a nun spouts the glories of hallowed ground and holy water, you will have gone home or fallen asleep.

Short Takes

Hoosiers is a sweet, but rather flat little story about a down-on-his-luck basketball coach who injects new life into a failing high school team. There isn't much plot, as this is more a series of characterizations, but the actors, especially Dennis Hopper as the town drunk, are first-rate. Rated PG. * * ½

The Kindred is the kind of movie that was made in the Fifties, and should have been left there. More funny than scary, you know this is a bad movie when a fine actor like Rod Steiger stars opposite an oozing blob of latex, and the blob is the more interesting of the two. Rated R. X

The Stepfather is a nail-biting, edge-of-your-seat horror flick the likes of which we haven't seen in years. It's a brutal story about an average guy in an average town who also happens to be a not so average psychopath. He likes to marry into ready-made families and

The GRI designation signifies 90 hours of advanced in-class real estate education. Realtors who have passed the GRI examinations are recognized as having attained one of the highest professional levels in residential real estate. EMBR holds seminar

ALAN JACOBSON shown with Jan Gilbert of C21 Boardwalk, Real Estate being awarded a copy of one of the marketing books from Jacobson's "Psychology of Selling" seminar recently presented by the Eastern Middlesex Board of Realtors Inc.

THE EASTERN MIDDLESEX BOARD OF REALTORS INC. presented Alan Jacobson's Seminar on "Psychology of Selling and Bottom Line Management Techniques" to a large group of Real Estate salesmen and brokers who continually seek to improve their selling techniques.

Health Center has $302,500 in pledges

A campaign for $300,000 to enlarge patient service areas at the Regional Health Center in Wilmington (RHCW) is a success, it was announced jointly by Eric T. Clarke, Ph.D., chairman of Choate-Symmes Community Services, and by Roger Metcalfe, president of the Community Board of Directors of the Regional Health Center.

The ambulatory care facility on Salem Street, Wilmington, is a division of Choate-Symmes Health Services.

"I am pleased to report $302,500 has been donated and pledged to the Expansion '86 capital fund campaign by nearly 400 corporations and individuals. I express appreciation to the donors who helped to oversubscribe the $300,000 goal. I encourage any who still wish to join them in this successful community project to act now," Dr. Clarke said.

He complimented the expansion fund leadership for outstanding guidance and assistance and expressed special gratitude to the Major Gift co-chairmen, David Milot of North Andover and Edwin Nash of Wilmington, and to George Hazel, M.D., RHCW medical director and co-chairman of the drive's Medical Division.

Announced in July 1985 and kicked off in November, the expansion program sought gifts to complete lower level areas built but unfinished when the Center opened on the 24-acre, Salem Street site in 1978. Reliance upon the Center's health promotion and patient care services by area residents grew steadily and continues today. Last year the 100,000th patient visit was recorded at the Wilmington location. Patient visits currently average more than 300 per day and 5,500 monthly. The Center provides round the clock, seven-day-a-week primary, specialty and walk-in/urgent care.

Last June (1986), a cornerstone time capsule was placed and sealed when lower level expansion of patient service facilities at the Center was completed. The capsule, to be opened in 2028 at the Center's 50th anniversary, contains messages and historical materials.

The expanded areas of the Center house Occupational Health Services, Ophthalmology and three divisions of Rehabilitation Services (Physical), Occupational and Speech/Language Therapies). Main floor areas freed for other uses are devoted to primary patient care needs.

areas for HMO and Preferred Provider Group members also are located there. The groups include Multi-Group Health Plan, Teamsters Union Local 25 Preferred Provider Plan and John Hancock Preferred.

Campaign leadership for the expansion drive also included: Geraldine Angelos, RHCW employee; Anthony Baumstark, M.D., RHCW chief of Radiology; Robert Baumwoll, M.D., Internal Medicine; Joan Belluce and Arnold Blake, RHCW Community Board; Arlene Burpee, AAJ Travel; Marie DiFlumeri, RHCW employee; Richard Fudge, D & D Lock and Hardware; C. Nicki Johnson, Commercial Bank & Trust; Henry Latta, RHCW Community Board; Mark Manfredi, RHCW employee; Raymond McNamara, RHCW Community Board; Robert Naughton and Richard Pochini, Choate-Symmes Trustees; Mary Rock, RHCW employee; Carolyn Santorsola, Arlington Trust Co.; and David Salomon, RHCW Pediatrician.

Nicholas A. Balog is the RHCW director and Choate-Symmes vice president.

PARIS ON A BUDGET

A new purse or pocket-size booklet, "Paris on a Budget", published by the French Government Tourist Office, is now available without cost.

Listed on more than 20 pages are over 90 moderately priced hotels and about 200 eating establishments ready to welcome those traveling on a modest or limited budget. All are in locations popular among visitors to Paris, with good public transportation and near major monuments.

"Paris on a Budget" concentrates on the city's less expensive 1 and 2-star hotels which have well over 35,000 rooms. All provide the accommodations Americans have come to expect, such as private bath and/or shower, telephone and elevator service. Restaurants, tea rooms and wine bars are listed by district, as well as the hours and days each is open.

There is a quick-reference locator map which defines the 20 arrondissements (districts) into which Paris is divided. It's an indispensable help in getting around the city by public or private transportation.

Write to: Paris on a Budget, French Government Tourist Office, P.O. Box 2658, Lake Ronkonkoma, N.Y. 11779.

RENAISSANCE MUSIC

The Greenwood Consort, Boston's award-winning Renaissance quintet, presents "Alla Veneziana" — a musical portrait of 16th century Venice on Sunday, March 15 to 4 p.m. at First Parish in Lincoln (Lincoln, Ma.). Veneziana begins with a barcarolle (Venetian boat-song) and continues through tales of amore, a soul-searching madrigal cycle (sestina text by Petrarch, music by Vecchi) and ends with a stroll through the streets of Venice, complete with singing commercials, dancing lessons and songs from the wild Gypsies. Call 259-8824 for further information.

SEAFOOD SEMINAR

A program on Seafood: Nutrition, Selection and Preparation will be presented by Nancy C. Stutzman, Extention Home Economist, Middlesex County Cooperative Extension, on Friday, March 13 from 10 a.m. to 12 noon at the Community Room of the Super Stop & Shop, Main St., Stoneham.

Seafood from Massachusetts contains vital nutrients that contribute to good health. Low in calories, low in salt, seafood can also be easy on the budget. This program will focus on selection, preparation techniques, and will introduce the non-traditional species. A new adventure of good eating awaits those with an interest for health and good taste.

Register at the Customer Service Desk, Stop & Shop or with the Middlesex County Cooperative Extension, 862-2380 or 369-4845.

Short takes from S-6

then take them apart, literally. The black humor and realistic overtones make this a chilling, unforgettable film. Rated R.* * * ½

Billy Galvin is an American Playhouse production that will probably do much better on TV than in a cinema for the simple reason that it is too little a story, with too little scope, to be very effective on a large screen. Set in Boston, this film about a construction worker and his uneasy relationship with his son relies on tried and true conventions that have become more hackneyed with each retelling. A little imagination would have helped a lot. Rated PG. * *

Over the Top is really Rocky Balboa disguised as an arm wrestler. There isn't much to say about the manipulative plot or Sly Stallone's stilted, smug mannerisms. Luckily, the last 20 minutes of the film, which deals with the arm wrestling championship, is done in a documentary style and is peopled with wild characters. Too bad you have to watch the rest of the movie to get to that part. Rated PG. * *

Mannequin is a leaden letdown instead of the uplifting fantasy it should have been. Instead of spinning a charming fairytale about a sculptor who loves his suddenly animated mannequin, director Michael Gottlieb loses the story amid offensive characters, uninteresting sub-plots and a lot of MTV-like editing. Rent 1948's One Touch of Venus, and see how a little warmth can improve the same story. Rated PG. *

From the Hip is a formulated, off-center attack on the legal profession that is supposed to be funny, but isn't. Director Bob Porky's Clark lost control of the film almost immediately and let it careen out of control until it stops dead in its own laugh tracks. Rated PG. *

Radio Days is Woody Allen's sentimental tribute to the glory days of radio in the 40s. A series of vignettes tied together with wonderful old tunes and disarming characters, this is one of the rare films that will give you goosebumps as you laugh. Perhaps not one of his most "important" films, but certainly his warmest. Rated PG.* * * *

Woodchips

By ANTHONY MANCONI

Folks, we can sit in our rocking chairs all day and, although we can rock a mile a minute, we'll get no further than where we started. America is fortunate that there have been many who have had the wanderlust and the urge to climb mountains, discover new horizons and explore the unknown. Balboa traveled to the Pacific Ocean, Lewis and Clark's expedition explored the Missouri River and across the American West.

In the east, Henry Hudson, with his son Benjamin, sailed up the Hudson River in a ship called the "Half Moon." Everything was going fine when, two days later the ship hit a sandbar and was grounded. No amount of expert maneuvering could set her free. Finally, Henry Hudson turned to his son Benjamin and said, "Well, I guess that's Al-Beny," (Albany). I may lose some readers after that one, but I can count on Ed Sargent of Wilmington to stay with me. Ed is a retired water department supervisor and he's "Waterman indeed."

There isn't a computer in the world that compares with the human mind. It stores millions of chips in a lifetime and brings the 'past' to the 'present' instantly. It does that sometimes by word association.

For example, whenever I read or hear the word "Lynnfield," I get a printout with the message, "Home of affluent professionals, members of the Dow Jones Fraternity, parking spaces for Mercedes, Jaguars and Porsches. I worked there for the state many years ago with college students on their summer vacations, building sidewalks. A resident came up to me one day and asked if I was the foreman. "Yes," I replied. "Well," he said, "You and your crew are wasting your time - I don't know anyone who will use these sidewalks except the birds, because almost no one walks in Lynnfield."

He was probably right years ago, but my dear friends, Jimmy Geary and his lovely wife Betsy and their beautiful daughter Suzanne walked to church last Sunday morning, in Lynnfield. It probably was because it was so cold Jimmy couldn't start his car.

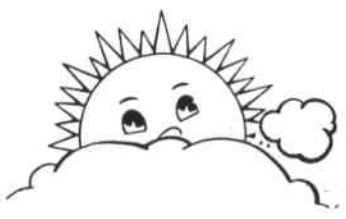
How long a minute is, depends on which side of the bathroom door you're on. The average woman would rather have 'beauty' than 'brains.' They think that the average man can 'see' better than he can 'think.'

Kathy said to me today, "Woodchipper, 20 fools had proposed marriage to me." "Is that so," I exclaimed. "Why the heck didn't you marry one of them? " She looked at me and said, "I did! "

A clergyman looking over the congregation said, "If I don't see a five dollar bill in the collection this morning I'm going to reveal the name of a man I see here who is living the life of Riley." There were four five dollar bills and a two dollar bill with a note attached saying, "I am three dollars short, I promise to bring them next Sunday."

The Stoneham Police arrested two boys who had shot out a couple of windows with their BB guns. The case was referred to the 'Appelate Court.'

This message came over the ship's radio, "My radar shows that you are on a collision course with me - request you change course 10 degrees east! " "This is the USS Wasp, change 'your' course 10 degrees west! " "This is Seaman Jones, sir, on lighthouse duty with which you are on collision course! "



I called my weatherman after one of those two snowstorms in February. I told him that because of his 'five inches' of 'partly cloudy' on my driveway, my car couldn't move and I lost a day's work. "From now on," I told him, "put away your maps and charts, never mind those highs and lows, just tell us plainly, is it going to rain or snow - yes or no! "

Some people were lucky during the cold wave that followed. They were sunning themselves on the beach in Miami or in Bermuda, or perhaps on a cruise ship, like the beautiful Patti Lastinger and Lori Uliano of North Reading, who were on the USS Carnivale, cruising the Bahamas. My aunt Nina of Wilmington went on her first cruise. She nervously asked the captain, "Sir, do ships this size sink often? " The kind, understanding skipper put his arm around aunt Nina to reassure her and said, "Ships this size sink only once! "

Almost everyone likes horses. Some are lucky to own one of them. Kim Hamel, of Stoneham, owns a beautiful horse named Cocoa, that is boarded at Weiss Farm in Stoneham. Kim visits Cocoa every spare minute she has, always bringing him a tidbit like a carrot or sugar cube. I love horses so much that I don't ever go to rodeos because the so called wild horses are made wild by tightening up their cinch straps.

Well, I received the ultimate insult from one of my readers. Jim DiNovo said to me, "Cows may come and cows may go but the 'bull' in Woodchips goes on forever."

Dennis Tully stopped his car and asked a pretty young girl waiting for a bus in Woburn Square, "Want a ride cutie? " "Are you going north? " she asked. "Yes I am," replied Dennis. "Good," she shouted, "give my regards to the Eskimos! "

Because of his 'magnetic' personality, Dick Hayes was chosen to represent Mass Electric Co. in the annual 100 Meter Run. He tried to take a 'short circuit' route, but a race official blew a 'fuse.' He shouted to Dick, "Watts the matter with you? " "Wire you running that way? " "Hey," Dick said, "I got lost in the rotary." Folks, a race is not always to the swift - but to those who keep on running.

A judge asked each of the four men before him what they were doing in the bookie parlor when the State Police raided it? The first gentleman said, "Your honor, I'm a 'locksmith' and I was trying to make a 'bolt' for the door! " A plumber said, "Sir, I was working on a 'plugged' up drain when a State Trooper 'flushed' me out" "I'm an electrician," said the third man. "I was changing a burnt out fuse." The judge gave him a 'light' sentence, one day in a 'dry-cell.'

A carpenter friend of mine was the last one saying "I was 'nailed' by a trooper when I bet $10 across the 'board.' The judge ordered him to 'lumber' over to the clerk of court and pay a $100 fine.

George Burns is over 90 years old and he still appears on stage in theaters on Broadwy. One night a carpenter came into his dressing room and said, "Mr. Burns, I'm here to repair the hole in the wall where one can see the chorus girls' dressing room on the other side." George smiled and said, "If you have to repair that hole then go ahead, but not on my account. If the girls want to look, well let them! "

DIVERSE JOB GROWTH

Massachusetts' diverse economy will continue to experience strong job growth over the next decade, with professional and technical occupations showing the most growth and expanding the fastest, according to a report released recently by the Division of Employment Security (DES).

The report, "Massachusetts Job Outlook — Occupational Employment Projected Changes 1984 to 1995," examines the occupational trends expected to shape the state's job market over the next 10 years. The report emphasizes the importance of training and education in Massachusetts, especially as professional and technical occupations are expected to see the most growth.

Among the highlights of the report: An estimated 159,000 new jobs will be generated in professional and technical occupations such as engineering, computer and health care jobs. This occupational group will experience the largest and fastest job growth over the next decade.

Service jobs comprise the second largest and fastest growing employment category, with health service occupations expected to grow the fastest.

Overall, middle and upper level jobs are expected to expand more quickly than lower level jobs. The fast growing service sector will provide an abundance of new jobs with the generally high paying business service positions accounting for fully 40 percent of that sector's job growth.

Management jobs are projected to grow 19 percent, generating more than 51,000 new positions, most notably for managers in computer and data processing and restaurants.

Sales occupations will expand 20 percent, providing more than 57,000 job opportunities ranging from travel agents, sales representatives, and cashiers to positions selling securities, insurance and real estate.

JOB FAIR

Northshore Private Industry Council Chairman Robert Donelan has announced that "Job Fair '87" will be held March 24th and 25th at Caruso's Diplomat in Saugus.

In making the announcement, Donelan stated "With labor shortages in the North Shore area being acute, Job Fair '87 will be an excellent source for businesses to recruit entry level, semi-skilled, skilled, technical and professional workers."

Over 100 leading employers from eastern Massachusetts are expected to attend.

North Shore area businesses interested in further information regarding Job Fair '87 should contact Ken Barnard or Don Galvin at 595-0484 at Northshore Employment Training, Inc.
